Action Line is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Q. While looking over some papers, I came across some stock certificates for 15 shares of the Buckeye Mining Co., of Colorado. Is this company still in business? A. C., Long Beach.

A. No. The second of two charters of the Buckeye Mining Co. expired in 1968, says Mrs. Edna Thompson, documents clerk for the Colorado Corporations Index. Under a now defunct state law, corporations had to renew their charters every 20 years. The Buckeye firm's 1888 charter was allowed to expire.

Q. When my husband and I were stationed in New York City in 1965-66, we had the pleasure of seeing the then new Broadway show, "Wait a Minum," starring a marvelous group of South African musicians and singers. We enjoyed the show tremendously and have been searching in vain for a stereo recording of the soundtrack. Does one exist? Mrs. M. L. O., Long Beach.

A. Yes. The show, by the original Broadway cast, currently is available on London, stereo AMS-88002. Any major record store should be able to order it for you.

Q. In March 1966 I bought a car from a friend. I sent the auto's pink slip to the Department of Motor Vehicles along with $2 so I could get the car transferred to my name. So far, I've heard nothing from them. What's happened? M. T., Bellflower.

A. Roberta Berry, secretary to the director of the Department of Motor Vehicles office in Los Angeles, says you apparently didn't send all of the applications needed to change the car's ownership. She says the auto's file in Sacramento shows it still registered under the name of the previous owner. "The 1967 licensing fee hasn't been paid, and there's no record of the $2," Mrs. Berry adds. She suggests you equip the car with the required carburetor anti-smog device, then take proof of its installation along with your other papers on the car to a DMV office and file duplicate ownership and registration applications. You also will have to pay the 1967 license fees and other applicable costs.

Q. In May, I sent to Ruby's in Baltimore, Md., for some crafts supplies. It wasn't a large, important order but I have heard nothing from them and would like the materials. They cashed my money order but, so far, have ignored my letters. Can you help? Mrs. M. D. Bellflower.

A. Store owner Herman B. Rothschild explained to ACTION LINE that he has been trying to get out of the mail order business since last year when he lopped off the staff which handled such orders. Mail orders now are filled by the other employees in their spare time, Rothschild says, so they are slow. He promised, however, to check into your order and see that the items are sent you soon.

Q. While my father-in-law was in a convalescent hospital, I agreed to pay for incidental expenses not covered by his state aid payments. I've been billed for such things as razor blades. In June, I learned that Medi-Cal had been adding $15 a month to pay for such items. When I told this to the director of the hospital, he refused to discuss the matter with me. How can I find out if I have been double-billed? F. C., Lakewood.

A. Write to the Medical Service Division, State Department of Public Service, 5555 Ferguson Drive, City of Commerce, Calif., 90022. "We will send an investigator out to assess the situation," explains Lois Phillips, chief medical social service consultant. She says the $15 monthly should cover all incidental expenses. Since other costs are included in the daily rate of the hospital, this billing sounds suspect.

Action Line

Q. Last December, my 9-year-old son sent $1 for a Monkees fan club kit. In March, his 12-year-old brother received a card saying for $1.50, he'd receive the same kit. Neither boy has received a thing. Where are the kits, and why was the price changed?

A. The kits are on the way, and the price was changed because there's a lot more "Monkee business" in the $1.50 size. Marilyn Schlossberg, production assistant for the Monkees, says mailing got bogged down in the flood of orders, but the increased contents of the $1.50 kit will make up for the delay.

Q. Why are highway workers cutting small grooves in the pavement along the San Diego Freeway. What is the purpose of these grooves? C.S., Long Beach.

A. Cutting grooves in the pavement on curved stretches of the Southland's freeways helps prevent skidding accidents in damp weather, says Charles Gustafson, information officer for the California Division of Highways. In wet weather, Gustafson says, a thin film of water collects on smooth pavement and causes automobile tires to "float" on the water instead of gripping the pavement. The grooves — known as pavement serration — allow the tire to push the water ahead of itself and thus give greater traction. The technique was developed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to allow for safer aircraft landings on wet runways. Gustafson says grooves have been cut into curved sections of the San Diego, San Bernardino, Hollywood and Santa Ana freeways, and have resulted in 85 per cent fewer accidents on these sections.

Q. I enjoy watching an afternoon television program called "Dark Shadows." Can Action Line tell me if this story was adapted from a book? M. W., Lakewood.

A. The somber series isn't based on a book, but on the Gothic style of writing, says Fran McFall, publicity representative for KABC television in Hollywood. ACTION LINE is sending you a cast list for the show.

SOUND OFF!

It's so refreshing to see something really positive like ACTION LINE on the front page. Why do newspapers think their lives depend on the exploitation of the negative side of life. It might be quite a challenge for your reporters to discover the "good stuff" going on and to make their stories show the exhilaration, high adventure and satisfaction when people accomplish something worthwhile and helpful. Give the murders, riots, shootings, marriage scandals and drug problems the back pages and put some heart-warming instead of blood-curdling stories out front. Mrs. C. E. S., Los Alamitos.

CUT MORE THAN PREDICTED

L.B. City Tax Rate to Drop 3.8 Cents

By DON BRACKENBURY

The Long Beach city tax rate for 1967-68 will be $14.446 per $100 of assessed valuation, a decrease of nearly 3.8 cents over last year, City Auditor Murray T. Courson said Friday.

This means that a person owning a home with a $20,000 market value, and a city assessment of $6,000, would pay a city property tax of $86.68.

The cut in the tax rate was even better than the 2.5-cent drop predicted by City Manager John R. Mansell last month when councilmen adopted the 1967-68 budget of $48 million in tax supported activities.

Mansell said at that time the 1966-67 tax rate of $14.825 could be lowered, despite an increase of $1.1

million in the property tax levy, because of Long Beach's "continued dynamic growth."

His prediction was borne out, and amplified, by a 10.5 per cent jump in the city's assessed valuation, a major portion of it the Douglas Aircraft expansion on the west side of Long Beach Airport and the company's increase inventory valuation.

Courson's report, filed Friday with the city clerk, said the current total assessed valuation of Long Beach property is $1,135,539,190, an increase of $108 million over last year.

Local real and some personal property is valued at $1,045,493,610, an increase of $104.5 million. Public utilities, which are assessed by the State Board of Equalization, have a value of $90,045,580, a gain of $3.1 million, Courson reported.

The local assessment represented an 11.1 per cent increase while the state-assessed roll rose 4 per cent, the auditor said.

Breaking down the city tax rate into its seven parts, Courson said the general purpose fund showed a slight increase, but all others dropped.

Rates are: general purpose fund, $9.94737, up $0.00688; library fund, $0.13658, down $0.00647; Municipal Bond, $0.02566, down $0.00157; Recreation $0.15406, down $0.00231; bond redemption, $0.04945, down $0.02586; transportation, $0.03395, down $0.00733; and park improvement, $0.09753, down $0.00174.

Demos Get Plea for Unity

Larry O'Brien

Says Back L.B.

By BOB HOUSER

Political Editor

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien Friday in Los Angeles delivered President Johnson's appeal to Democratic leaders of 13 western states for the kind of support that enabled Presidents Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy to overcome crises in their terms.

O'Brien, addressing a banquet of the Western States Democratic Conference in the Ambassador Hotel, also indicted the Republican Party for "a muddy mixture of irresponsibility and a do-nothing program."

His strong attack on the GOP was the highlight of a Friday program which also included talks by LBJ's consumer affairs representative, Betty Furness, State Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch, and panels on fund-raising and candidate packaging.

The President, said O'Brien, "asked me as his personal representative to give you this message:

"The smoke of domestic and foreign violence is thick and blinding. Men of little vision panic, men of little knowledge of the crises of the past feel lost. Men of little courage feel threatened. When panic, aimlessness and fear are in control, a nation is in danger of acting in ways foreign to its spirit and its history."

"I CALL UPON every Democratic leader to show our people the difference between easy but negative solutions to the nation's problems, and the meaningful actions and programs of our party."

"I call upon every Democrat for the kind of leadership and support that made it possible for Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman and John F. Kennedy to meet and to overcome the crises that darkened their days."

O'Brien said all of the New Frontier program and 85 per cent of the 1964 Democratic platform "have been translated from hope and aspiration into law and into solid accomplishments," while seven years of Republican "obstruction is equally clear."

Addressing himself to Vietnam, O'Brien related Johnson's word that "any indication of a willingness to talk about peace, move toward peace, lower the scale of violence as a signal

Rockwell's Replacement Spouts Usual Bigotry

New York Times Service

ARLINGTON, Va. — The man who took charge Friday of the American Nazi Party said that George Lincoln Rockwell's assassination Friday would bring joy to Negroes and Jews.

Matt Koehl, party secretary and next in command after Rockwell, declined to guess who might have killed the party leader or why. But he said: "Whenever did it, it is of benefit only to the blacks and the Jews of this country. It is a defeat for every white man."

Koehl, 32 years old, is a "major" in the party's "storm troopers." He was interviewed on the front porch of the shabby three-story frame house that is the party's headquarters in Arlington.

Koehl said he had been a private first class in the U.S. Marine Corps in 1953. He said he was a native of Milwaukee and had attended the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee for three years.

2 Soldiers Accused of Espionage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two U.S. Army sergeants have been accused of conspiring to hand over American secrets to the Soviet Union, the Pentagon disclosed Friday night.

The two were identified as Staff Sgt. Leonard J. Safford of Chillum, Md., and Sgt. I.C. Ulysses L. Harris of Neptune, N.J.

Charges linked the two with Nikolai F. Popov, listed as a first secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, and with Anatoly Tikhonovich Kireyev, identified by the State Department as a member of the Soviet mission to the United Nations.

The State Department said Popov left the United States on Aug. 22 and Kireyev had left July 31. No reason was given by the Soviet embassy for their departure, the State Department said.

THOUGH BOTH men had valid visas for return to this country, the visas have been canceled, and the Soviet government was told both men are not eligible to return.

Harris, the department said, was taken into custody in Korea on Aug. 20 and returned to the U.S. He is now being held in the post stockade at Ft. Belvoir, Va.

Safford was taken into custody in Chillum on Aug. 19 and is being held at Ft. George G. Meade, Md.

In detailing the spy charges against Safford, the Pentagon said between March 1966 and August 1967 he conspired with Harris and Popov and others in Washington and elsewhere.

Lightning Bolt Hits Boy Scout

LONG PINE (UPI) — A 16-year-old Boy Scout who was struck by lightning while he stood atop Mt. Whitney, the highest peak in the continental United States, was flown here by helicopter Friday for medical treatment.

Harold Dicky, pilot of a helicopter under contract to the U.S. Forest Service, picked up the Fontana scout from the mountain in Sequia National Park.

At 3:50 p.m., Dicky's helicopter touched down outside the doors of Southern Inyo Hospital here. The youngster was taken inside, where Don Christenson examined him.

Christenson said the boy, Albert Brongersma, appeared to have suffered no burns or injuries, but that the youth would be kept in the hospital for observation.

Fred Herzberg of Fontana, the youth's scoutleader, walked down the mountain to summon help Friday morning. He told park rangers that the youngster was resting in a cabin atop the mountain.

Herzberg said he saw the youth "standing on a ball of fire in the rocks."

Rolls Car, Injured in Utah

By WALT MURRAY

A seriously injured, unconscious man resembling accused Torrance police slayer Jerry Lee O'Brien "in every detail" was hospitalized in a Utah town Friday after his car rolled over on a desert highway.

Sheriff's deputies early today were checking the injured man's fingerprints against those of O'Brien, the man police say gunned down Officer David Seibert, 25, in a $15,000 market robbery Aug. 10.

"It looks like O'Brien," said Tooele County Sheriff Fay Gillette. "Even if it's not, we'll hold this guy on suspicion of possession of narcotics or brandishing a gun. That is, unless he dies on us first."

Torrance detectives sent O'Brien's fingerprints to Utah authorities by plane.

Gillette said the injured man — in Tooele Valley Hospital with a broken collarbone, broken ribs and head injuries — appeared to have been under the influence of narcotics when he rolled his car.

The sheriff said the suspect had not regained consciousness after the 8 a.m. Friday accident, "but he matches O'Brien's physical description in every way."

The suspect carried a driver's license issued to a Joseph James Howard of Lakewood — no street address listed. Torrance police said this is an alias used by O'Brien in the past.

Elsewhere on his person, the suspect carried a slip of paper carrying the address of O'Brien's mother, who resides on Hortense Avenue in North Hollywood.

Sheriff Gillette said the suspect also carried identification belonging to O'Brien's brother, Patrick, who Torrance detectives believe is serving with the U.S. Air Force in Puerto Rico.

A massive manhunt for the 34-year-old O'Brien has been under way since Officer Seibert was gunned down in front of the Foods Company Market, 17500 Crenshaw Blvd., when he SAIGON — The military ticket in South Vietnam's presidential campaign upstaged rival civilian candidates Friday with victory predictions, proposals for peace feelers to Hanoi and promises that corrupt military officers will be purged. Chief of State Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu, presidential hopeful, and his running mate Premier Nguyen Cao Ky, indicated five generals were slated for transfer or worse because of corruption. A source said two of those on the way out were Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Vy, the chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Linh Quang Vien, the minister of security.

In the war, American planes for the second time in the war slashed back into a previously forbidden buffer zone along the Communist China border to bomb a North Vietnamese railroad. The raid against the Lang Giur railroad yard was one of 152 missions during the day. Other pilots bombed the Kep Ha MIG base 37 miles northwest of Haiphong. In South Vietnam, Communist troops attacked two U.S. Marine outposts along the demilitarized zone. Air Force B52 bombers in virtual "instant retaliation" helped the Marines hurl the North Vietnamese back.

British Fear Assassin Wave

HONG KONG — British colonial officials said today they expect a sustained assassination campaign will be waged by Red Chinese terrorists who boasted they burned to death an anti-Communist radio comedian. The comedian, whose specialty was ridiculing the Communists, died Friday after terrorists poured gasoline on him and set it afire to make him a human torch. The day also saw more bombs exploded in the Communist campaign against British rule in Hong Kong. Police formed a special squad to ferret out terrorists and provided protection to a number of prominent persons believed to be potential targets.

Roaring Forest Fires Put Crews in Retreat

Fires scorched vast new areas of the northwest timberlands Friday, sending weary fire fighters scurrying before leaping sheets of crackling flames, with officials of the afflicted states worrying about the rapidly rising cost of fighting the infernos, more forests were closed to tourists. Flames whipped by gusty winds leaped across laboriously built fire lines in forest after forest and new, lightning-set fires erupted almost as fast as old ones could be contained. In central California, giant redwoods that have stood since the time of Christ were threatened by a 2,000-acre blaze that swept into Sequoia National Park. It was only five miles from the stand of great trees, some rising to a height of more than 300 feet. But, with winds subsiding, fire fighters encircled a brush and timber blaze in the Three Rivers area after 1,930 acres had been blackened. State Division of Forestry dispatchers said if all goes as expected, they would begin releasing crews today. In Los Angeles County, a quick-moving brush fire charred more than 50 acres of dry brush Friday night in the Chatsworth area before it was brought under control.

To the north, one of the worst fires at China Creek in the north Idaho panhandle. Hot, dry winds sent it rampaging over nearly 13,000 acres of rugged woodland in less than a day. One side of its blazing perimeter swept to within less than a mile of the 5,000-acre Eagle Creek fire and it appeared unlikely that harried crews would be able to keep them from combining. Forecasts were for a continuation of hot, dry weather and occasional lightning storms. In Montana, the small community of Olney was threatened by a fire raging out of control in the Flathead National Forest. Four national forests in Montana were declared completely off-limits.

Floods, Funnels Hit East

Floods forced some evacuations and caused major traffic tieups in parts of the East Friday, fires raged out of control in the arid Northwest and funnel clouds were sighted over parts of Florida, South Carolina and Colorado. Several families left their homes in Alexandria, Va., after 7 to 8 inches of rain. The torrents caused major traffic tieups on Interstate 95 just south of Washington, D. C., and on other roads in North Arlington, Va. Flooding continued along most small streams and some major rivers from northeastern Alabama and the Carolinas across the Virginia to southeastern Pennsylvania. The rain slowly tapered off during the day in much of the flooded area, moving northeastward into southern New England. Dry weather persisted in the Northwest where thousands of acres of timberlands were ablaze. A funnel cloud was sighted 5 miles southwest of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and other funnel clouds were observed over Greenville, S.C. and 10 miles southwest of Denver. A heavy thunderstorm lashed St. Cloud, Minn., with 60-mile-an-hour winds and dumped hail and rain on the city.

Tennessee Frees SNCC Official

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — George Washington Ware, a Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee worker charged with sedition under a Tennessee law, was released from jail Friday night under $5,000 bond. His release came several hours after he appeared handcuffed in court to seek his freedom on a writ of habeas corpus.

U.S. Bond 'Leak' Charged

WASHINGTON — Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., said Friday there are strong indications inside speculators were able to take advantage of an advance leak on a new $2.5-billion bond issue floated by the Treasury. "Once again questions have been raised that there was a leak of advance information concerning the interest rates, maturity date, etc., of a new $2.5-billion bond issue which the Treasury Department released to the public yesterday," said Williams in a Senate speech.

U.S. Auto Deaths Drop

CHICAGO — There were 600 fewer deaths from accidents in the first six months of this year than in the same period of 1966, the National Safety Council reported Friday. The death rate per 100,000,000 persons dropped from 57.8 to 56.6.

Civil Rights Measure Buried

WASHINGTON — Senate leaders sent House-passed civil rights legislation to the Judiciary Committee Friday, where chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., predicted he would kill it by adding President Johnson's open housing provision. The legislation, intended to protect civil rights workers, was sent to Eastland's committee with orders to return it to the Senate within 60 days. But Eastland promptly put in his amendment to add the administration's open-housing proposal to eliminate discrimination in all sales and rentals.

Wholesale Prices Alarm Officials

WASHINGTON — Consumer prices rose substantially in July, a normal experience for the month, the Labor Department reported. More worrisome to government economists was a companion report that industrial wholesale prices rose in August after a record-breaking five months of stability. This indicator is probably the most closely watched as a signal of inflation. Both increases will help the administration's case for an anti-inflation tax increase, now pending before Congress. The consumer price increase for the month was 4 per cent. While this was the largest for a month this year, it was in line with the average experience for July during the past 20 years. The increase boosted the Consumer Price Index to 116.5. Thus, it took $11.65 to pay for items that cost $10 in the 1957-59 base period. Despite record high average paychecks of $102.14 a week for 45.5 million workers, the rise in living costs and increased Social Security taxes kept their purchasing power 77 cents a week below a year ago. Consumer prices in the Los Angeles-Long Beach Metropolitan Area increased .3 per cent in July.

Castro Terror Ring Broken

CARACAS, Venezuela — Government plainclothesmen, killing three outlaws in gun duels in the Caracas area, claim to have smashed a Castroite terrorist ring working under orders from Havana. Authorities said the three were connected with the kidnapping last March of Julio Tobarres Borges, brother of Foreign Minister Ignacio Tobarres Borges. Police also reported recovering $55,000 to $85,000 in loot from bank hold-ups they allegedly staged.

Dropout Campaign Launched

WASHINGTON — President Johnson proclaimed a national "stay in school" campaign Friday to counter the dropout problem. Johnson said that this year "more than 900,000 of our youth will not return to their high school classrooms to complete their secondary education." The President said of the campaign will continue indefinitely.

Actor Paul Muni Dies at 69

Combined News Services

Paul Muni, a giant of the movies' heyday who was equally convincing as the gangster "Scarface" and the dedicated scientist Louis Pasteur, died Friday in Santa Monica. He was 69.

Muni's wife was at his bedside in their home when he died at 1:30 p.m. Death was attributed to heart trouble. The actor and his wife had resided in Santa Monica six years.

In 1955, he was forced to quit his role in "Inherit the Wind" on the New York stage because of impairment of vision due to a tumor. His left eye was removed later that year.

PAUL MUNI
Made History as 'Scarface'

Muni, an actor for more than a half century was born at Lemberg, Austria, Sept. 22, 1897. Muni appeared in his first picture, "The Valiant," attracting such attention that he was given a chance at a multiple role part in "Seven Faces."

The film failed, but Howard Hughes chose Muni for the lead role in "Scarface."

"Scarface" made movie history. "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Gang," "The Good Earth" — in which he was nominated for an Oscar; "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "Juarez," "The Life of Emile Zola" and "Hudson's Bay" were among his most successful pictures in the 1930s. He appeared in various television dramas, including Playhouse 90 and on the TV series "Saints and Sinners." Muni married the former Bella Finkel. They had no children.

Funeral services are scheduled today in Loomis for the father of state school chief Max Rafferty. Maxwell Lewis Rafferty died in an Auburn hospital Wednesday night. He was 80.

MEMORIALS

Memorial services for industrialist Henry J. Kaiser will be held today in historic Kawaiahae Church, the traditional worship place for Hawaii's royalty and government leaders.

The multimillionaire builder of dams, ships, hospitals and worldwide industrial complex died Thursday. A similar service is planned Monday at the First Congregational Church in Oakland, Calif. Interment will be in Oakland, headquarters for the Kaiser empire.

President Johnson Friday sent a message to the industrialist's son, Edgar F. Kaiser, saying "The entire nation joins with you in mourning the loss of a great American. Henry J. Kaiser embodies in his own career all that is best in our country's traditions."

Mikos Theodorakis, Greek musical composer and former member of Parliament sought by the army-led regime since the April 21 coup, was arrested by security police late Monday, reliable sources in Athens said Friday.

They said Theodorakis, 42, who wrote the score for the films "Zorba the Greek" and "Phaedra," was being held incommunicado. An outspoken critic of the Greek monarchy and a professed Communist, he was sentenced in absentia last month to 5½ months in prison on charges of insulting the honor of the Greek royal family.

The newly elected commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday called for an immediate blockade of North Vietnam and promised an all-out attack against violence and sedition in the U.S.

Joseph A. Scerra of Gardner, Mass., took over Friday at the closing session of the VFW's 68th convention in New Orleans. Scerra, a 20-year VFW member, was appointed by President Johnson earlier this week to a citizen's committee to observe Vietnam's election.

Mrs. Walter Bogacz of Meriden, Conn., assumed the presidency of the ladies auxiliary.

Court Battle Over Aircraft Safety Rules

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A suit challenging a new state rule on safety regulations for aircraft was filed Friday in superior court by a private travel club.

The Los Angeles Vagabonds, Inc., headquartered in Marina Del Rey, contended in their suit that State Corporations Commissioner Robert H. Volk does not have the right to enforce the safety regulations since the federal government had preempted the field of aircraft regulation.

Superior Court Judge Steven F. Weisman set a hearing date of Sept. 8 on the matter.

State Atty. Gen. Thomas C. Lynch ruled last Aug. 12 that California can enforce the same safety regulations on airplanes of private travel clubs as those required for commercial aircraft.

Anaheim Girl Wins Drum Major Fete

Anita Sue Libert, 11-year old Anaheim resident, won the advanced solo competition in the drum major category at the University of Mississippi Friday.

More than 2,000 youths from throughout the U.S. are competing this week in marching and twirling events in the America's Youth on Parade Pageant.

FULLY FIT

President Johnson, who will be 59 Sunday, was described Friday by his personal physician as enjoying "completely satisfactory" physical fitness.

Vice Adm. George G. Berkley, the medical man, issued the following report through the White House press office:

"The President's health is excellent. Routine examinations have at no time indicated any deviation from the normal. General physical fitness is completely satisfactory." Press secretary George Christian said, "I've heard of no special birthday plans whatever."

HER PLANS

Shirley Temple Black, who has been considering running as a Republican candidate for the Congressional seat of the late J. Arthur Younger, announced a news conference for next Tuesday in San Mateo.

A spokesman said only the news conference will put an end to speculation about her plans. Her advisor, attorney Forden Athearn, said "My opinion is that the chances are 99 per cent that she will run."

FIT FOR TRIAL

A 21-year-old farmhand with a history of mental hospital treatment was ruled fit Friday at North Battleford, Sask., to stand trial on murder charges in the Aug. 15 massacre of nine members of a farm family. Victor Ernest Hoffman will have preliminary hearing Oct. 24.

Customhouse Transfer to Terminal Island OK'd

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

The Customs Service Friday night began moving from downtown Los Angeles to the new $45-million U.S. Customhouse on Terminal Island—six hours after the proposed transfer was approved by a Federal District Court judge.

The Los Angeles Custom Brokers and Freight Forwarders Association attempted to block the move with a preliminary injunction sought from Judge A. Andrew Houk.

Judge Houk denied the association's request, and also dismissed a temporary restraining order which he had issued last Monday.

The judge denied the request on the grounds the association had not suffered a legal wrong, or been deprived of its legal rights.

"The grounds that the downtown brokers may endure financial loss caused by the move are not sufficient to grant the injunction," Judge Houk said.

"I can't see it," he said.

The association's attorney quoted from several letters written by Customs Service officials promising "adequate" services would be provided in downtown Los Angeles after the move.

"As the District Director of Customs now describes these services they will not be 'adequate,'" charged the attorney.

Judge Houk provoked a snicker from the crowded courtroom when he labeled the term "adequate" as a "girdle phrase."

"It covers but does not define the problem," he said.

At one point during the 3½-hour hearing the judge executed a unique time-saving legal maneuver by accepting the sworn testimony of 27 brokers simultaneously.

Attorney Marks claimed that all the brokers felt the move would leave the no fraud.

Marks added that none of the brokers had attempted to get office space in the harbor area, because they had been "lulled" into thinking there would be adequate service provided in the Los Angeles Central area.

No Verdict Yet at Blakeman Trial

An Orange County Superior Court jury weighing the fate of accused murderer William T. Blakeman failed to reach a verdict after more than 12 hours of deliberation Friday, and was locked up for the night.

Deliberations were to resume at 9 a.m. today at the Santa Ana courthouse.

Blakeman, 25, of Seattle, is charged with the knife-slaying of a pretty Vancouver, B. C., secretary, 27-year-old Gloria Dawn Collins, who was murdered in a bedroom at the apartment of her hosts in Fullerton after a going-away party March 3.

Blakeman, employee of Hughes Aircraft Co. in Seattle, was attending a Hughes training course in Santa Ana and had met the victim at least twice before she was slain, according to court testimony.

Judge Byron K. McMillan had instructed the jury that they should not find Blakeman guilty of first-degree murder. At most, he said, this would be a case of second-degree murder, or manslaughter, if the defendant is found guilty, the judge said.

Blakeman and Miss Collins were from the same home town but did not meet until introduced in Fullerton by friends of Blakeman's mother.

They met first on March 2 during a small party given by Blakeman's hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Parks. Their second encounter was March 3 at the apartment of Miss Collins' hosts, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Comiskey, 3106 Pearl Drive, Fullerton. The Parks and Comiskies resided a block apart.

The second encounter was a going-away party for Miss Collins, who had spent two weeks in the Southland. The party broke up about 3 a.m. the next morning, and Blakeman returned to the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Parks and went to bed, it was testified.

Bandit Gets $23,000 From Norwalk Market

A stocky bandit escaped with approximately $23,000 from a Norwalk market Friday after loitering near the cashier's cage until an armored truck made a delivery, sheriff's deputies report.

Deputies said the gunman forced Robert Chieo, assistant manager of the Market Basket, 14209 S. Pioneer Blvd., into the cage following the 3:15 p.m. delivery and then held Chieo, and Gerald Dalton, the cashier, at gunpoint, while he stuffed money into a canvas sack.

The man, described as being about 35 years old, 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighing 150 pounds, then grabbed a second money sack, ran out the back door and disappeared through the parking lot.

SAN PEDRO FISHING BOAT AGROUND IN WASHINGTON

A San Pedro fishing tender, the Long Island, is aground and taking on water off Friday Harbor, Wash., according to the U.S. Coast Guard.

The 84-foot vessel, owned and skippered by Nick Jaspica of 1538 15th St., San Pedro, is carrying 75 tons of salmon.

The Coast Guard said that Jaspica was arranging commercial salvage of his ship and its cargo.

Treasury Official Rejects 'Inadequate Service' Claim

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A top U.S. Treasury official Friday rejected claims that the department's Customs service renewed on a promise of adequate service for downtown Los Angeles.

Assistant Treasury Secretary W. True Davis said the department plans to go ahead as planned with the move of most agency services to the new Terminal Island Customhouse.

He said services remaining in downtown Los Angeles will be reviewed 90 days after the shift to determine their adequacy.

This review was Davis' answer to a demand by 13 Los Angeles-area congressmen that he or some other top Treasury official journey to Los Angeles to listen to the complaints of brokers opposed to the set-up now planned.

"We promised them adequate service, and that's what we believe we are giving them," said Davis.

It won't be long after the move until the Customs Service will find it has to move back to Los Angeles to meet the demand," he said.

KNOKE SAID an offer made by the owners of the Hellman Building, present district headquarters, to lease the agency 6,000 to 8,000 square feet of office space for $1 per year, had been declined.

"It will cost the government $500 a day if we do not use the new customhouse facility," he told the court.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Fred Brosio, who represented the Customs Service at Friday's hearing, said the move to Terminal Island would bring personnel closer to the harbor area, where most of the imports arrive.

Stanton Bar Slaying Widow Thought Holdup 'Joke'—Then Husband Died

The widow of a man slain in a Stanton bar hold-up last Feb. 16 testified Friday that she first thought the robbery was "a joke."

Mrs. Bernice Seagris, whose husband, James, 40, was one of two patrons slain in the $1,200 robbery of the Gaslight, appeared as a prosecution witness at the murder trial of William W. McClellan, 26, of Alhambra.

She told Judge Samuel Dreizen and an Orange County Superior Court jury in Santa Ana that the defendant jumped onto the stage at the Gaslight, flourished a gun, and she and other patrons "thought it was part of the act."

"It wasn't until he began shouting obscenities at us that I realized he was serious," Mrs. Seagris testified.

"Jim (her husband) seemed mad when the men (robbers) started to leave. He reached toward the next table to pick up a chair. I tried to stop him, but he pulled loose from my grip, threw the chair, then ducked beneath the table next to us. There was a lot of confusion. I didn't hear the shot. I didn't know he was shot until I saw him sprawled on the floor... the blood on his shirt."

Under cross-examination by defense attorney Thomas Keenan, she related how she knew McClellan was the man in the bar by describing his physical appearance.

"How can you be really certain," Keenan said. "His eyes," Mrs. Seagris sobbed. "He has such mean eyes."

The parade of prosecution witnesses, most of them in the bar at the time Seagris and Joe Gray, 33, of Huntington Beach, were murdered, is expected to week. The trial is expected to continue through next to last about three weeks.

McClellan's co-defendant in the robbery-murder, Wayne Lee McFarland, 21, of Alhambra, earlier this week confessed his role in the robbery, but denied he killed the two men. He will return before Judge Dreizen Sept. 11 for a penalty hearing on first degree murder. The judge ruled his confession to the robbery also constituted a guilty plea to the crime of murder.

Breathtaking Beauty!...

AT COOL, CLEAN 4,000 FT. ELEVATION
This is a high, four-seasons land surrounded by famed Sequoia National Forest. Every lot at Pine Mountain Ranch is engineered to grant the owner maximum privacy and to take advantage of stunning panoramas of forest, streams, meadows and mountains.

Serenity!... Here the peace is nature's own, broken only by the tree-stirring breezes, the call of a nightbird or the rush of a mountain stream.

Growth!... Pine Mountain lot owners are building (many do it themselves) for a richer today and a better tomorrow. Some live here all year round (roads are all-weather).

Value!... The map shows why Pine Mountain Ranch must grow in value as time goes by. There is far too little such prime recreation land available in America. The Pine Mountain Ranch region will soon be among the lands most coveted by recreation seeking Americans.

Cloudburst Rips Roads in Sierra

CRYSTAL BAY, Nev. (AP) —A cloudburst slashed through the Sierra Friday night causing floods that knocked cars off a cliff, destroyed a house, filled apartments with mud, closed roads and trapped motorists.

Worst hit was the North Lake Tahoe area of Crystal Bay and Incline Village. Damage also was extensive on Mt. Rose, near Reno. Highways were blocked throughout the area.

There were no immediate reports of injury, but Highway Patrolmen said they couldn't reach the Crystal Shores area where the cars plunged off the cliff.

"We're afraid of what we're going to find," said a patrol dispatcher. "It's a dandy. There's extensive property damage throughout the whole area."

Eight hundred feet of highway was washed out and more than a mile of cars was stalled from the apartments to the casinos at the California — Nevada border, the fire department said.

of a desire to negotiate, will find an equal response on our side."

O'Brien charged that GOP policy, on the domestic scene, has been to "frustrate, oppose and hinder every major effort by this administration to remove the social combustibles on which riot and dissension breed."

AGAIN CHARGING GOP obstruction, O'Brien said all citizens concerned with living in a safe, secure neighborhood "should be told again and again of the President's initiative in the Safe Streets and Crime Control Bill, and of the overwhelming Republican opposition."

Atty. Gen. Lynch, who told newsmen he had not been asked but "would be delighted" to head a Johnson slate of delegates in the 1968 primary, charged in his Friday keynote address that Republicans of the 90th Congress undercut remedies for urban problems at the same time GOP governors were demanding them.

"We cannot allow the Republican Party," he said, "to conduct its typical campaign of dealing with new problems by complaining about them."

18 Book Firms Charged With Fixing Prices

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —The city and county of San Francisco, the San Francisco Unified School District and the city of San Diego Friday filed treble damage antitrust suits in federal district court here against 18 publishers of children's books.

The suits, identical to suits filed Thursday by the states of Washington and Hawaii, claimed the publishers combined and conspired to fix prices on children's library books.

The suits do not specify the precise amount of damages allegedly sustained.

TWO U.S. ARMY sergeants, Leonard J. Safford (left) of Chillum, Md., and Ulysses L. Harris of Neptune, N.J. have been arrested on charges of conspiring to sell national defense secrets to the Soviet Union, the Pentagon disclosed Friday night.

where to obtain information relating to U.S. national defense.

It said Safford knew "at the time that such information would be delivered to the representative of a foreign government."

THE CHARGE against Harris contends that between February and August 1967 at Neptune, N.J., Freeport, N.Y., and elsewhere, he conspired with Safford, Popov Kireyev and others to obtain information relating to national defense.

Another of the charges against Safford is that on June 18, 1966, he stole a U.S. Treasury check of $24,076.78, the property of Air Products and Chemicals Inc.

His job then, the Pentagon said, was an administrative supervisor in the Army Strategic Communications Command at Suitland, Md.

The announcement said that on Dec. 8 Safford solicited Robert A. Cook to photograph military equipment at the U.S. Army Strategic Communications Command Facility in the Lynn building in Rosslyn, Va., directly across the Potomac River from Washington.

Further, the announcement said, Safford delivered a package of unidentified documents to Popov on June 24.

Five days later the charge said, Safford attempted to deliver to Popov another package of unidentified documents near the Palmer Park Shopping Center, also in Maryland.

Specifications against Harris were that:

—On February 10 he requested William K. Fletcher in Neptune, N.J., to put him in contact with an agent of the Soviet Intelligence Service.

—On April 29, in Neptune, he received from Popov instructions for meeting with foreign agents.

—On May 27 he met at Freeport, N.Y., with Kireyev.

IN SOME STATES, he said, "toilet valves must meet as many as five different standards before they are installed, but artificial heart valves require no standards whatsoever."

She also scored the GOP, noting its 1964 platform plank which pledged "an end to power-grabbing regulatory actions . . . and the ceaseless pressing by the White House, the Food and Drug Administration and Federal Trade Commission to dominate consumer decisions in the market place." The meaning of this plank, said Miss Furness, "is, of course, let the customer beware."

Pierre Salinger, press secretary for President Kennedy and short-term senator before losing to Sen. George Murphy, moderated a panel on how to package the candidate.

Introducing panelist Don Muchmore, of Long Beach, chairman of the board of Opinion Research of California, Salinger described Muchmore as "the most effective, articulate and successful pollster in the United States, who has refined the art of polling to the point where it really means something to a candidate."

Suspected Cop Killer Arrested

responded to a robbery alarm.

O'Brien was later traced to a Torrance motel, but he and an accomplice fled before police arrived.

O'Brien escaped from a Tulare County mountain conservation camp June 25, four days before a $3,000 North Hollywood market robbery, which police believe the gunman also pulled.

Police this week circulated posters throughout the San Fernando Valley, where O'Brien was still believed to be hiding. Other posters were circulated throughout the Western States.

Sheriff Gillette said the injured suspect rolled his car in an unwitnessed accident 80 miles west of Salt Lake City on Interstate Highway 89 Friday morning.

The sheriff said he had "no inkling" the victim might be O'Brien until about 3:30 p.m. when he received an answer to an interstate police teletype.

"At first we thought he was a guy we want for a bank robbery," Gillette said, "but he turned out to match O'Brien's description instead."

The sheriff pieced together incidents before the accident this way:

The suspect entered the restroom of a desert service station on Highway 89 about 7 a.m. to give himself an injection of what sheriff's deputies believe was a narcotic.

But he apparently administered too strong a dosage and passed out. He awoke when a 10-year-old child entered the lavatory; he threatened the boy with a .32-caliber revolver. A service station attendant, investigating a cry from the child, told the suspect to leave and called the Utah Highway Patrol.

After the suspect had driven several miles into the desert, he remembered he had left some narcotics paraphernalia in the restroom and turned his car around.

When within four miles of the service station, the sheriff said, the suspect overtook the auto on a highway off-ramp.

The overturned auto—a 1962 model police say O'Brien was believed to be driving—was found by Patrol Officer Dan Chidester, who had taken a report on the service station incident.

Gillette said he called Torrance police as soon as the teletype on O'Brien came in Friday afternoon.

Court Upholds Murder Verdict

LOS ANGELES (CNS) —The Los Angeles Court of Appeal Friday upheld the April 1966 conviction of wealthy real estate man Charles W. Hinman for trying to buy the murder of attorney Murray Choliner.

The court sustained all five counts on which the 60-year-old Hinman was convicted by an 11-woman, one man jury.

Hinman, now serving a one to five-year sentence in prison, was accused of trying to hire a salesman to kill Chotiner, who had represented Hinman's wife in a divorce.

FORMER American Nazi captain John Patler is shown parading to the left of the pipe-smoking Nazi leader George Lincoln Rockwell at a demonstration last year in Chicago. Rockwell was shot and killed Friday by a sniper in Arlington, Va. Patler has been charged with the murder.

Selection of Jury Tedious as Kirschke Waits in Wings

By SHERM WILLIAMS

Jack Kirschke's defense counsel accepted 10 prospective murder-trial jurors Friday and wound up with two to go before the prosecution gets into the Superior Court act in Los Angeles.

With Judge Kathleen Parker presiding, the jury-selection process will resume at 10 a.m. Monday.

Defense Attorney Albert C. S. Ramsey is to continue his share of the wedding-out program at that time.

When the defense is satisfied, the State — represented by Assistant Attorney General Albert W. Harris — will take over its part of the jury-selecting chore.

Only when the jury finally is impaneled and actual testimony begins, will the tactics of opposing counsel become evident in the case, where more than legal reputations are at stake.

For Kirschke, suspended deputy Los Angeles County district attorney, selection of a particular juror can mean his life or death, imprisonment or freedom.

THE PROSECUTION places Kirschke in the role of a jealous, avenging husband who murdered an unfaithful wife and her paramour when he caught them in her bedroom last April 8.

But the defense maintains Kirschke was in Las Vegas at a Rotary Club convention when the killings took place, and has no knowledge of who slew fashion designer Elaine Terry Kirschke, 43, orville William Drankhan, 41, at the Kirschke home in the Naples section of Long Beach.

Each side can challenge 20 prospective jurors — in effect keep them out of the trial. For this, the attorney need give no reason at all.

Other prospective jurors can be ruled out "for cause" if conflicts in occupation, beliefs about capital punishment or other reasons would prevent them — in the eyes of the court — from being fair and impartial.

AFTER RAMSEY finishes with the 12 initially seated in the jury box, it will be Prosecutor Harris' turn. Then, presumably, the game of legalistic musical chairs will be played until each side thinks it has weeded out potentially "dangerous" jurors.

Judge Parker Friday excused a prospect who said she could not be away from home at night because her surgery.

From then on, it was the attorneys' show.

Ramsey began questioning the first prospective juror, Mack Trotter, who said he was a butcher in an independent market in Hollywood until his retirement.

THE QUESTIONS were time-consuming, probing, and dug into nearly every facet of Trotter's life.

Ramsey learned from Trotter that his wife had once worked in a dress shop until 1957, when she retired.

"Does the name of a dress design, 'Elaine Terry Originals,' mean anything to you?" Ramsey asked. (Elaine Terry Kirschke operated a firm under that name for some time.)

"I've heard the name, is all," Trotter answered.

Yes, he said, he had been married since 1923, has two daughters, both grown and one of them married.

Still answering Ramsey's questions in a quiet voice, Trotter said in response to whether he had any close friends in law enforcement, that he had known a retired public defender since 1927.

RAMSEY SMILED at that. Trotter also said he knew a judge. Ramsey seemed to like that, too, but asked if Trotter had ever discussed the judge's cases with him.

"No," Trotter said.

Then Ramsey switched to newspaper, radio and television coverage of the Kirschke case pretrial hearing, which concluded Thursday.

"Did you read about the case when it broke?" Ramsey asked.

"Yes," Trotter said.

"Did you read the subsequent stories?" the attorney asked.

"Do you mean all of the stories?" Trotter asked.

Ramsey said, "yes," and Trotter replied, "Not each of them," and went on to say he had been interested in the case.

ON AND ON, the questions went. Yes, Trotter said, he watches news on Channels 2 and 4 . . . but wasn't quite sure about the names of the commentators.

Ramsey questioned Trotter about an hour before turning to the second prospective juror, a warehouseman that took 20 minutes.

The defense attorney then questioned a part-time salesman for 12 minutes, a press operator for about 15 minutes, a plant service clerk for another 15 minutes, and a State Department of Motor Vehicles clerk for yet another quarter-hour.

THEN IT WAS a lady bill collector, another woman who said she sells advertising, a musician who says he plays in a combo when money is tight and builds houses when it isn't and, finally, a motherly medical secretary who, it turned out, is married to a Sheriff's Department juvenile division sergeant.

Ramsey wrapped up his court day by quizzing the woman as to whether her husband's profession would bias her.

New Nazi Boss Rips Minorities

of the greatest white men of all time.

Rockwell was killed by a sniper Friday as he was backing his car out of a parking place in front of a shopping center here.

An expelled party member who had been a "captain" in Rockwell's storm troopers, was charged with his murder.

The arrested man is John Patler, 29 years old, a New York native of Greek extraction who was cashiered out of the Nazi Party by Rockwell last March for fomenting dissension between fair-skinned and dark-skinned Nazis.

ACCORDING TO police sources here, Patler, a swarthy man who had legally changed his name from John C. Patsalos, had divided the party ranks by habitually calling fair-skinned, blond party members "blue-eyed devils."

Rockwell was shot in the head and chest about noon as he backed his 1957 blue-and-white Chevrolet out of a parking place in front of a shopping center in this suburb of Washington.

According to witnesses, the 49-year-old Nazi leader had just left his laundry at a laundromat in the shopping complex and was leaving when two shots were fired in quick succession from the roof of the one-story shopping center building.

Two bullet holes appeared — only inches apart — near the top of the windshield, and the Rockwell car rolled forward and struck the rear of an automobile parked in front of the laundry.

Rockwell stumbled out of his car on the passenger's side and fell on his back in a swirl of soapflakes.

ARLINGTON POLICE officials disclosed later that Patler was spotted standing at a bus stop about half a mile from the death scene by a police inspector who knew him to be "an associate of Rockwell's."

Patler, who has a long record of arrests for disorderly conduct connected with Nazi activities, did not resist the police. He was unarmed, and the police said they have not found a weapon.

Rockwell, the son of George (Doc) Rockwell, a vaudeville performer, was born on March 9, 1918. He was graduated from Hebron Academy in Maine and attended Brown University in Providence, R.I. before joining the Navy in World War II.

Russia Developing Satellite Network for Communication

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has begun establishing a domestic satellite communications network that will include the building this year of more than 20 earth-relay stations to link its vast eastern provinces with Moscow.

The United States does not yet have such a domestic system, although it pioneered in space communications and has led a 58-nation consortium in creating a global network of satellites and ground stations.

Since April 23, 1965, Russia has launched five communications satellites, each carrying the name "Molniya (Lightning) 1." Each has been much larger and more powerful than the largest American communications spacecraft—though this country began its experiments more than six years earlier.

Official U.S. sources say the Molnias have carried considerable military traffic and have experimented with black-and-white and color television, voice radio, telephone, telegraph and facsimile transmissions.

PRESUMABLY, the internal Russian system would be tied into the "international" system proposed by Russia and other European Communist bloc nations, excluding Yugoslavia, in Moscow last spring.

The internal system is intended primarily to bring Moscow telecasts to residents of Siberia, the Far East and the extreme north over distances up to almost 6,000 miles, according to Russian announcements.

American sources said the U.S.S.R. previously had disclosed the building of a few ground stations that would receive and relay broadcasts from satellites.

This week, however, the official Soviet news service Tass stated that a network of more than 20 earth stations was being created in the eastern provinces. The so-called "orbit" stations will pick up signals from Molnias and send them on to local television centers.

This is a less expensive way to bring communications to sparsely populated areas than through ground lines or radio microwave links, which are difficult to maintain in remote areas, Tass said.

A SIMILAR argument has been made in the most recent proposal for an American domestic satellite system. Broadcasting companies, communications carriers, foundations and others have offered such differing views on an internal system that the Federal Communications Commission recently asked the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT) to propose a pilot system.

COMSAT, a quasi-public corporation created by Congress, suggested that two satellites be used to link New York and Los Angeles to receiving stations in those cities and at 30 sites in the Rocky Mountain area.

It is easier to demonstrate the special value of a space-based system over remote areas where there are fewer established ground communications, COMSAT argued. The proposal is now being considered by the FCC.

COMSAT also owns more than 50 per cent of the international space communications consortium called INTELSAT and acts as its manager.

President Johnson last week named a task force to review U.S. communications policy. He said at the time that a domestic system should be compatible with the worldwide system now being created by INTELSAT.

The President renewed American offers to the Soviet Union to join INTELSAT or to link its Molniya system to INTELSAT system.

PRAGUE — Observations of the "mystery phenomenon" in the Milky Way have shown these radio emissions to display almost all of the characteristics of artificial interstellar communications.

Scientists strongly suspect, however, that the emissions are being generated by a natural process that has not yet been adequately explained, rather than by intelligent beings.

The most recent observations, made simultaneously from California, Massachusetts and Britain, used almost the entire width of the Earth as a baseline. They have shown the spots in the sky producing the mysterious emissions to be far smaller than the nearest star seen by the human eye.

Furthermore, some of these emissions are fluctuating on a time scale measured in hours or even less.

In recent years, a number of astronomers have explored the possibility that civilizations technologically more advanced than our own may have evolved elsewhere in the Milky Way, the star system of which we are a part.

It has been proposed that they might use radio signals to communicate with one another or draw attention to themselves, and that we might be able to observe such signals. Several criteria have been proposed for their identifications.

—The wave length would probably lie near a wave length of special scientific interest to an emerging technology, much as a lighthouse would fly its flag from the highest point on an island. The natural radio emissions of hydrogen and hydroxyl were proposed as such landmarks in the radio spectrum.

—The signals would indicate their artificial origin in being obviously unnatural in some respect.

—The signals would come from a source of extreme narrow angular width.

—Their waves would be polarized—oriented in a particular vibration mode.

—The signals would vary in time or frequency in a manner suitable for carrying messages.

With Thursday's report of time variations, the mystery phenomenon has met all of these criteria. It only remains to gather and analyze the emissions sufficiently to judge whether or not they seem to carry a message.

Mariner Put Straight for Venus Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mariner 5 has successfully performed the first of four adjustments of the angle at which it views Canopus, its guiding star for the long flight to Venus, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday.

NASA also reported that the spacecraft, launched last June 14, is more than half way to the planet and should pass within 2,500 miles of it next Oct. 19, on schedule.

Mariner 5 is more than 114 million miles along its 216-million-mile spiraling path to Venus, NASA said.

CLOTHES CAN PROVE VERY SHOCKING

CHICAGO (AP) — Your socks can be shocking — and your shorts may be a safety hazard.

The National Safety Council reports socks without cotton can lead to shocks and shorts made of nylon, silk and Dacron may cause static electricity.

The council says persons working in explosive atmospheres shouldn't wear shocking shorts, and talcum powder shouldn't be dusted in shoes.

The powder also causes friction that can produce electricity, which may touch off an explosion.

MADE IN JAPAN

Now Tokyo Has Hippies —Smaller, Less Costly

New York Times Service

TOKYO — Japanese call them Futenzoku, which means "crazy tribe." Americans, if judging by outward appearance and personal habits only, might identify them as hippies.

"Some call them beggars, drug addicts or screwballs. Others say they are prophets or saints," observed the popular Japanese magazine Shukan Asahi.

Whatever they are, the Futenzoku are the current sensation of the Japanese social scene. Illustrated articles about them have appeared in the principal magazines of mass circulation, and at least three popular television programs have been devoted to their doings within a week.

THE FEW HUNDRED Futenzoku will leave a mark on the Japanese language. They have added "Greenhouse," which is what they call their favorite hangout in a tiny, triangular park area in Shinjuku, the Tokyo counterpart of New York City's Greenwich Village.

Several million commuters in the world's most populous city who use the giant Shinjuku transportation hub pass the littered "Greenhouse" every day. They observe the tribe in its adopted habitat, and this has helped to stimulate interest in the Futenzoku.

The bearded, unkempt males and their miniskirted girl companions are also seen in favorite Shinjuku coffee shops, which stay open all night and feature continuous rock 'n' roll music. The Futenzoku are expert go-go dancers.

A FUTENZOKU member who calls himself "Sabu" — many have fanciful names — told an interviewer that many of the group spend as much as 16 hours a day in coffee shops. When exhausted from continuous dancing, they nap awhile at their tables.

Students of the group's habit say that most are habitual users of sleeping pills. "There's nothing like dancing under the influence of sleeping pills," said a Futenzoku male with a Beanie haircut, who was identified as "Ken." "You start getting numb from the hands and feet, then the arms and legs. Your vision becomes blurred."

The Futenzoku apparently shun "hard" drugs like heroin, and their consumption of alcohol is not immoderate.

But Shukan Asahi commented: "They place no importance on chastity, and disdain prevailing sexual morals."

LIKE THE HIPPIES of the U.S., the Futenzoku describe themselves as dropouts from the workaday society. But they differ from the hippie movement in rejecting any kind of group philosophy or mission. "We live only for now," a 22-year-old Futenzoku leader called "Gan" told a television interviewer.

"Gan" is said to be unusual in the group because he owns a wristwatch, but he points out triumphantly that the watch has no hands.

"I hate anything productive," he declared.

Futenzoku girls work periodically as waitresses to help pay the tribe's living expenses.

By nightfall the situation had eased considerably. The Agriculture Ministry announced that only 20 to 50 of the little beasts were still at large and a spokesman said the hunt will continue relentlessly right through the weekend.

New Interest Shown in Cigarette Filter

New York Times Service

HILLSDALE, N.J. — The Brown & Williamson tobacco Co., which had spoken very disparagingly Thursday of the new Strickman filter, showed considerable interest in the invention Friday.

Experts from the third largest tobacco company, headed by its general counsel, escorted a group of smokers to the Strickman laboratory to test the filter for taste.

After some two hours of puffing by the human guinea pigs, Addison Yeaman, counsel and vice president for the cigarette company, was asked why his company was showing such renewed interest in the filter invented by Robert L. Strickman. He grinned, waved his hand and refused to talk.

The company's cigarettes include Raleigh, Viceroy, Kool and Belair.

Thursday the president of Brown & Williamson, Edwin P. Finch, had issued a statement saying that in tests of the Strickman filter in May, 1966, his company had found the device "was not practicable for use in the production of a smokeable cigarette."

Dr. Gordon Kaye, assistant professor of surgical pathology at Columbia University's college of physicians and surgeons, said at his laboratory that adverse criticism of the filter was apparently based on two sets of tests made more than a month ago under conditions that were still disorganized.

These tests showed that the new filter required a much stronger draw on the cigarette by the smoker. But subsequent tests have shown that it is now only slightly higher than the average.

100-MPH Sea Vessel Study Set

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three study contracts are being awarded for the design of a small, sea-going vessel that may travel at more than 100 miles-an-hour, the Johnson administration announced.

Specifications call for a 100-ton boat with "a maximum speed of 80 knots acceptable but 100 knots preferred and operational in six-foot waves." One hundred knots is equal to 115 miles-per-hour.

The boat would travel on an air cushion lifting it above the water.

What Sound Does Elegance Make?

THE FISHER 220T

The Fisher 220-T opens up a Golden Age in stereo listening pleasure. It offers the best of everything in high fidelity, at unusually moderate cost. On one beautifully integrated, compact chassis are the finest AM and FM reception facilities, a flexible group of master audio controls, a powerful 55-watt (HF) amplifier; and most significant of all, world-famous Fisher engineering—the kind you can depend on for years of trouble-free service.

The audio controls have been logically grouped on the front panel for ease of use. The four-position Program Selector (Phono), FM Auto, AM, Aux) provides a choice of virtually every type of program source. The dual bass and treble controls give high flexibility of tonal characteristics for precise adjustment to one's own taste. A front-panel headphone jack and speaker (main/remote) switch are included. A front-panel switch introduces interstation muting on FM, when desired.

Melina Mercouri Challenges Constantine to Take Stand

NEW YORK (UPI) — Actress Melina Mercouri challenged visiting King Constantine of Greece Friday to speak out against the rightist military junta that is ruling his country as a first step toward its overthrow.

She said she just wanted him to take a stand. "He is either for Mickey Mouse colonels or he is for the Greek people," she said.

MISS MERCOURI, who was denationalized by the junta, made an unsuccessful attempt to transmit a letter to the 27-year-old monarch when he and his wife, Queen Anne-Marie, visited the United Nations to lunch with Secretary General Thant. She later left the letter for Constantine at the Hotel Pierre, where he is staying.

The actress later visited two dozen Greek demonstrators who marched in the rain in a plaza opposite the United Nations where Constantine could not see them. They shouted: "The king must answer! No silence! The king must go!"

The handsome athlete king and his beautiful 21-year-old Danish wife got a scattering of polite applause as they entered the crowded lobby of the United Nations for luncheon with U.N. dignitaries. It was a private visit and there was no ceremonial fanfare.

Miss Mercouri said she did not believe reports that Constantine's trip was a gift for his bride. "He wants something," she said, referring to a scheduled visit with President Johnson in Washington.

SHE SAID she hoped Johnson would cut military aid to Greece. She added that she does not want a civil war in Greece because of the depth of the country's suffering since World War II. But she said she thought it would help if the king would speak out.

"I only ask King Constantine to disapprove," she said. "I don't know of the power that he has, but I want him to break his silence."

Mayor John V. Lindsay scheduled a dinner party at Gracie Mansion for the royal visitors. They leave Saturday evening for Toronto and will later visit Expo 67 in Montreal before going to Washington.

Tranquility Reigns at Katim Concert

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Hollywood Bowl and the Los Angeles Philharmonic hosted American conductor Milton Katims Thursday night, Katims being the final guest conductor of this summer season. Next week, Zubin Mehta returns to the Southland, his own orchestra, and his unique brand of program arrangement.

ON PAPER, Katims' program was not any more imaginative than Mehta's. It listed Dohnanyi's semi-opera Suite in F-sharp, the First Violin Concerto of Wieniawski, and Shostakovich's handsome and shallow Fifth Symphony.

Whatever one's feelings about all this unending music, there can be no denying its pleasant and tranquilizing effect Thursday. Nor can anyone fault the most honest and accurate way it was performed.

Izhak Perlman, the young Israeli violinist, whizzed through Wieniawski's thrice-familiar showpiece in what must have been record time, demonstrating once again his razor-sharp virtuosity.

night air, especially as the orchestra was playing cleanly and Katims kept pushing, something he did not do two years ago on this same podium. Still, by midwinter and indoor standards, this was a pops program, exactly the kind we have had all summer long.

IN CASE you haven't heard, next week there will be more of the same, with the crucial difference that Mehta's presence may draw many more patrons to the Bowl's ninth and final week than Copland and Katims were able to attract to the eighth.

BOOK REVIEWS

An Austere Beauty Pictured in Words and Photographs

REVIEWED BY BOB SANDERS

GLACIER BAY, THE LAND AND THE SILENCE. By Dave Bohn. An Austere Beauty — Sierra Club, $25.

Here is a picture, made of words and photographs, of an austere but beautiful land. For five years Dave Bohn made annual forays into the wilderness of ice and water that is Glacier Bay National Monument, located west of Juneau and southwest of Skagway.

On every trip he took and gathered photographs, most of them black and white but some in color, of what he saw, and took meticulous notes on how he felt and what he did. This book is a fusion of these efforts.

Beginning with the first sighting of the area by a Russian ship captain in 1741, Bohn traces the history, social and economic, down through the years. Calling on earlier historians and explorers, and cutting out ancient photographs of them and their era, the author puts together an intriguing account of how the area came to be and what it is today.

THE PICTURES Bohn took himself over his years of travel within the monument are interspersed with those he has collected from archives of various historical societies to present the land and the men who explored it and traced its glacier movements in an intriguing perspective.

The most intriguing part of the book is the last part, entitled "Home on Glacier Bay." This is Bohn's own account of his wanderings in the monument from 1962 through 1966. In it he records not just the details of his travels but also the mood, the thoughts, the hazards, the tortures, the freezing pain and the sunny warmth of the land in bold rushing language.

For those of us who can go to Glacier Bay its wonders are there. For those of us who can't — or at least who can't now — its wonders are in this book.

KAUAI AND THE PARK COUNTRY OF HAWAII. By Robert Wenkam. Sierra Club, $25.

If you have never been to Hawaii, buy this book. If you have been to Hawaii, buy this book. In the first case, it will show you places the people who have been to Hawaii didn't see and give you something to talk back about. In the second, it will show you the places you missed so that your future trips will hold the same mystery for you your first trip did.

In this, the 15th volume of the Sierra Club's classic Exhibit Format Series, the high quality, both pictorial and literary, has been maintained.

Author-photographer Robert Wenkam, who first went to Hawaii in 1941 as a civil engineer and remained as an architect, gave up architecture to become a full-time photographer in 1950. This book is a fine illustration of the wisdom of his choice.

The pictures, all in magnificent color, show the island of Kauai, second in size from Hawaii of the Hawaiian chain, from almost every conceivable angle.

From the sweeping beaches and pounding surf to the imposing peaks and dense forests, Wenkam's camera is everywhere, recording not only the panoramic views of land and water but, interspersed among them, the minutiae of flowering leaves and the buds of tropical vegetation.

Although the price of the book is paid for in the color photo album, the buyer who neglects the text will miss the point. The text, encompassing the entire history of the island and the depredations man has already made, is a fervent plea for preservation of this irreplaceable island as a National Park. Putting on his author's hat, Wenkam makes a plea for saving "his" island that is every bit as dramatic as his pictures.

Anyone who loves wilderness can only hope it will be effective — and right now is not soon enough. — Bob Sanders

Bob Hope Will Emcee 14th Awards

Bob Hope will stretch his all-time "Oscar" command performance record to 14 when he serves as master of ceremonies for the 40th Annual Awards Presentation of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences next April 8.

ANNOUNCEMENT of Hope's selection as the emcee was made by "Oscar" Producer Arthur Freed.

Hope first officiated at an "Oscar" Presentation in 1940, and since has presided at Academy Awards programs in both banquet and theater settings, and on radio and television. The comedian is the first person to serve five consecutive years as master of ceremonies, from 1958 through 1962. He also filled this role in 1945, '46, '53, '55, '65, '66, '67.

THROUGH THE years, Hope has been honored by the Academy five times. In 1966 he received a specially designed honorary gold medal award for his unique and distinguished service to the motion picture industry and the Academy. Previously, he had received a special silver plaque, a life membership, an honorary "Oscar" statuette, and the Jean Hersholt Humanitarian Award.

The 40th Annual Presentation will be held in the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium and will be carried live over the combined television and radio facilities of the American Broadcasting Company. The telecast will again be in color.

Diane Varsi Returns to Hollywood—to Act

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Diane Varsi, who left Hollywood "forever" in 1959, is back on a studio sound stage starring in a new movie.

Tall, blonde, beautiful and difficult, Diane is a perfect enigma.

NINE YEARS ago she had it all. A long-term contract with 20th Century-Fox, which was grooming her for major stardom, an Academy Award nomination for "Peyton Place," and a mystique that set her apart from all the other actresses in town.

Then in a rumble with the studio, she walked away from it all. At the time she said she wanted to "find herself."

It appears that Diane still is searching. She has been married four times. She still is not hell-bent on becoming a movie star.

But she is looking for a house near Hollywood, which indicates she wants to resume her movie career. Yet she continues to be vague about leaving the golden path to stardom in the first place.

Asked point blank why, she answered: "I left because it was the only thing I could do in the situation."

What situation? Diane shrugged. Her blue eyes looked off into space and that was the end of her explanation.

Although she won her Oscar nomination playing Allison MacKenzie in "Peyton Place," she never has seen the television show, nor Mia Farrow in the same role.

"I DON'T have that much curiosity," she said.

"I'm interested in working as an actress, but not necessarily in re-establishing a Hollywood career. I don't understand the term 'movie star.' It doesn't mean much to me."

Diane did not work for five or six years after leaving 20th Century-Fox. They held her to a contract that controlled any appearances in television, movies or the theater.

Today Diane says she has no regrets about her decision to junk it all.

Instead of a powerful and rich studio behind her, Diane now finds herself starring in "wild in the streets," an American international picture.

AIP is to 20th-fox as Hunt Hall is to John Wayne. But her surroundings and circumstances appear to be immaterial to Diane.

She is nonchalant.

She finally was released by Fox in 1964, but did not rush to recreate the excitement that surrounded her when critics and producers proclaimed her a feminine James Dean.

DIANE's indifference seems genuine. She watches and listens to everyone, saying very little herself. Doubtless the girl is still a fine actress. Glamorous she's not — and doesn't want to be.

"I don't understand why people should be interested in me," she concluded.

And maybe she's right.

Israelis Visit Cypress

By MOLLY BURRELL

It's a long way from the kibbutz, but for nine Israeli visitors Orange County looked like home Friday.

They were looking at Holstein cows, walking in hot, humid pastures, inspecting American dairy machinery — all part of a summer course in dairy husbandry which brought them half way across the world.

Host for the morning in Cypress, Pete Hettlinga of 6502 Orangewood Ave., guided the tour through his 90-acre dairy, pasture, and private zoo and aviary.

HIS GUEST, managers of kibbutz dairies who belong to the Association of Israeli Cattle Breeders, were there to see first hand American know-how in operation at "one of the cleanest, neatest, most efficient, best organized farms in the state," according to Cal Poly professor Herman Rickart who organized the tour.

The visitors came from villages from all over Israel from sun and rain but here are no shelters and these cows are beautifully healthy. Shelters are expensive — maybe we don't really need them," they observed.

They spoke with pride of their Israeli-Friesian cow, bred from three strains — American Holstein, Dutch stock and a native cattle — which produces as much milk as the Holstein but can stand more heat. They're already exporting many of them to Iran and plan to sell them to other countries where extreme heat is a hazard for dairy operations.

Dr. Rickard, their professor for the summer course at San Luis Obispo, says the summer seminar is mutually profitable: "They're really sharp in class, and they're teaching me things — like Hebrew, I can say 'Good morning,' 'Good evening,' 'Let's go,' and always, 'Shalom.'"

After mutual "Shaloms" the visitors left for another dairy visit near Camarillo prior to their return to campus. In two weeks it's back to the kibbutzim where they analyze their findings and distribute information to fellow dairymen.

Two Autos Set Ablaze by Arsonist

A 28-year-old Orange County man suffered first- and second-degree burns Friday when fire destroyed two autos and damage to a third in an apartment carport.

Ronald Blaine Keen, resident of an apartment building at 2915 E. Vine Ave., El Modena, attempted to fight the blaze, discovered about 3:30 a.m.

INVESTIGATORS said the fire was started by an arsonist, but that they did not know if it was the so-called "auto arsonist," responsible for a rash of car fires in the county over the past three months.

California Highway Patrolman Larry Gifford discovered the Vine Avenue fire and alerted tenants in the building.

Three Orange County fire department units and one unit from the city of Orange controlled the blaze in about 15 minutes. Damaged was estimated at $5,000.

He won a clock radio at the state fair on Friday when his pet rooster took the crowing contest. The bird sounded off 222 times in one hour.

Beating of Rolling Hills Man Charged to Three Youths

Three youths have been charged by sheriff's juvenile officers in the savage beating of a Rolling Hills man who returned with his family early from vacation to find a teen-age drinking party in progress at his home.

Held for investigation of burglary, assault with a deadly weapon and mayhem are two brothers, Donald Wilson, 20, and James Wilson, 16, of 2858 W. 226th St., Torrance, and Mark Pe-

Will Fight to Restore Items Cut by Reagan

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — Democratic Assemblyman Winfield A. Shoemaker has said he plans to try to restore some items cut by Gov. Ronald Reagan from the University of California budget when the legislature's special session opens Sept. 5.

Shoemaker, who said the UC campus here was hardest hit by the budget reductions, conceded he was not optimistic about succeeding in restoring the funds because it would require a two-thirds favorable vote by both houses to override the governor's veto.

Robert Edward Manfredi, 46, an electronics engineer of 14 Cayuse Lane suffered a severely torn ear and multiple cuts and bruises about his head in the attack Wednesday night. Deputies said three youths returned to the home after Manfredi had cleared out a rowdy group of boys and girls who had been cavorting in his sprawling ranch-type home.

Deputies said the Manfredis had left their son, William, 15, at home but had been in daily contact with him by phone. William, they said, was hosting the party.

Manfredi told deputies that jewelry and other items valued at $800 were missing from the house. Deputies said the missing items have not been recovered.

Southland Road Engineer Named

State Highway Engineer John Legarra has named Haig Ayanian as district highway engineer for Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties.

Ayanian, 52, deputy district engineer for San Francisco for the past four years, joined the State Division of Highways in 1937.

Collision Ignites Gas Truck; 48 Homes Cleared

OAKLAND (UPI) — A gasoline tanker rig crashed Friday into a lumber truck trailer, sending a ball of flame 100 feet into the air and forcing evacuation of 48 homes.

The resulting inferno closed down the Nimitz Freeway for seven hours and backed up traffic 10 miles.

The California Highway Patrol said the lumber rig had engine trouble and apparently was coasting to a stop on the freeway shoulder. The gas rig, with two trailers loaded with 1,500 gallons, struck the lumber vehicle, jackknifed and burst into flames.

LBJ Planning 'Blockbuster' Ghetto Action

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson plans to send Congress a blockbuster series of recommendations next January to help the nation's riot-scarred cities, congressional sources said Friday.

He has secretly organized more than a dozen task forces, composed of some of the nation's leading urban affairs experts, and ordered them to submit their recommendations no later than December. At least two of the groups are studying ways to combat unemployment among Negro men, believed to be a leading cause of this summer's riots.

Congressmen who have been briefed on the President's plans say he is urging lawmakers not to launch costly crash programs for the cities immediately and to wait until he submits his recommendations.

"HE THINKS HIS NAME must be on every bill that we pass up here," one disgruntled legislator said, noting that a dramatic new urban aid program would give Johnson political mileage at the start of his 1968 re-election campaign.

For the time being, Johnson is urging only that full funds be voted for his existing urban aid programs, which have been slashed deeply by Congress.

But despite White House efforts to quash them, more than a dozen crash programs to improve slum conditions and create jobs have been introduced. Sens. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., and Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., are among the sponsors.

Johnson currently is directing administration efforts to sidetrack Clark's $3-million proposal to create ghetto jobs and against a similar $4-million House measure with 78 sponsors.

Troop Use in Riot Poor-Guard Chief

DETROIT (AP) — The National Guard could have stopped the riot in Detroit last month if it had been called in sooner and deployed differently, the Michigan National Guard Association president said Friday.

Decisions on both matters rested with civil authorities, not the National Guard, Lt. Col. Howard M. Dryden told a news conference.

He declined to specify which authorities he thought were responsible or to say the decisions they made were "mistakes."

"I don't think we were used the way we should have been," he said. "We certainly weren't used in the way we would like to have been used."

THE NATIONAL Guard was alerted about 7:30 a.m. Sunday, July 23, that it might be called to action. If it had been sent to the riot then or in the next few hours, Dryden said, "We could have stopped it. We could have cut it down considerably."

"However, it was not until 4:30 p.m. Sunday that the mayor — Jerome P. Cavanagh — was convinced that he should call the governor — George Romney — and request the National Guard," he said.

"I think this was about four hours late," Dryden said.

He said the timing added to problems because guardsmen on Sunday afternoon outings could not be reached. Other guardsmen

Cal-State Class Is Flying High

The small Piper J-3 airplane dashed down the football field at California State College at Long Beach Friday and leaped into the air with the cheers of 60 students ringing through its propeller.

For the fourth year, the aerospace education class at the college had used the rebuilding of an airplane as its class project. The class is composed of 212 students who are school teachers taking the class in order to keep up with their students.

Instructors for the class, which started July 31 are Dr. C. Thomas Dean and Jay Ackerman. Half the class is women.

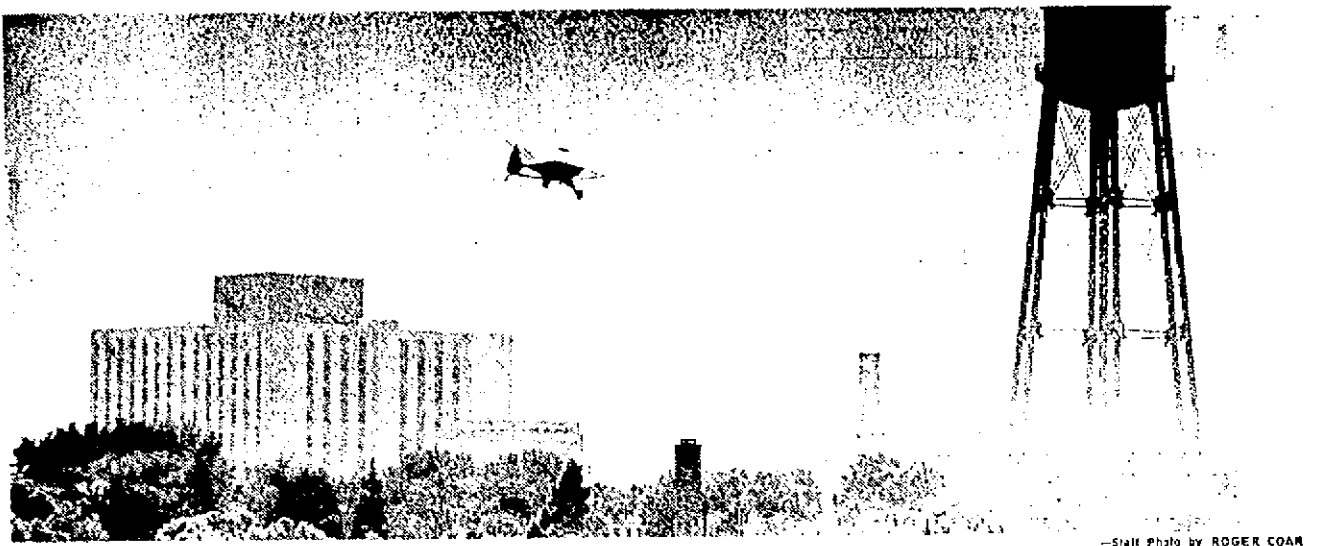

"About 900 man and woman hours went into the rebuilding of the plane," Ackerman said. "The students really got a kick seeing the end product of their effort really flying."

Ackerman, himself, gets a kick on seeing the plane fly. He is the pilot.

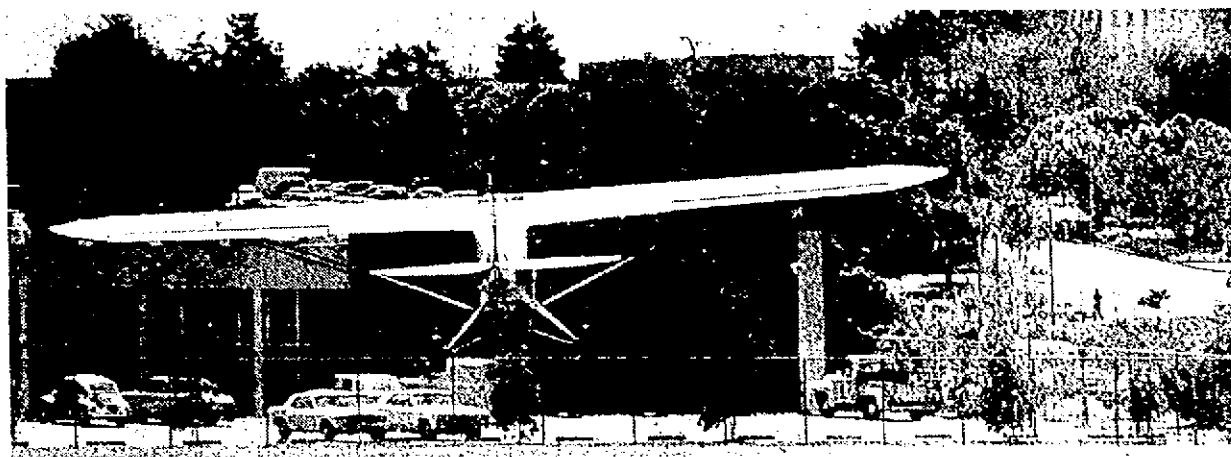

ON FRIDAY, a balky carburetor delayed the long-awaited takeoff. Tower operators at Long Beach Airport, who had been informed Ackerman would land there about noon, asked him if it took all that long to bring the small craft from the football field when he finally landed at 2:30 p.m.

The students, standing at the edge of the football field, held their breath as the pilot taxied the 65-horsepower plane down to the end of the field.

Ackerman headed the plane into the wind and with a short run of only about 150 feet, the light aircraft leaped into the air while a mighty roar of success went up from the class.

Taxpayers Can Smile at Trend

Taxpayers in nine west Orange County communities had good news this week: it was "hold-the-line" or cut the rate.

There were no tax increases in sight, and in most areas, residents had the county assessor and recent property reappraisals to thank.

Councilmen in Buena Park Tuesday lowered the rate five cents over last year's $1.25 per $100, and Anaheim council was expected to follow suit next Tuesday by dropping its 16-year $1.10 rate to $1.05.

THE CUTS accompanied record high budgets. ($33,573,392 for Anaheim, $7,580,552 for Buena Park) but were attributable to new property appraisals which were nearly 16 per cent higher in Anaheim and 22.7 per cent higher in Buena Park.

In three other cities, Cypress, Huntington Beach and Stanton, tax rates were scheduled to remain the same although council action will not come until next week. Rates were $1.10 per $100 in Cypress and Stanton, and $1.33 in Huntington Beach last year.

Seal Beach, with a 32 per cent increase in assessed valuation, set a $1.35 tax rate for the third straight year.

THREE CITIES where the $1 per $100 tax rate has been in effect for the past five years will have the same tax bills this year following council action in Garden Grove, Los Alamitos and Westminster.

Administrative Services Officer Gary Cottrell of the county assessor's office said this spring's property reappraisals ranged from 5 to 37 per cent in increased assessed valuation, and that the office plans to continue reappraisals in other parts of the county.

Church Convention Vote Due on Duty in Armed Services

Delegates to the 32nd convention of the Assemblies of God will vote early next week on a proposed change in their constitution and by-laws to allow young members to serve in combat capacities in the armed forces without going against doctrine.

The change was proposed two years ago at the Des Moines, Iowa, convention by 32 Assemblies of God chaplains serving in the armed forces.

Serving in the armed forces in a combat capacity is against the church doctrine under the present constitution and by-laws.

At Friday afternoon's session in the Long Beach Arena, more than 3,000 delegates voted to send the report back to the committee which had been working on it in order to clarify the last paragraph.

The final paragraph reads: "The General Assembly hereby declares its unswerving loyalty to the government and the Chief Executive, and we propose to assist the government in time of war in every way morally possible, consistent with our faith."

After the committee has changed the wording, the general assembly will vote on whether to allow members of the church to still serve in the noncombat positions as conscientious objectors, yet, will allow those members of the church who wish, to serve in combat positions.

Church Seeks Tax Exemption for Its Oil Producing Land

The tax exemption granted to church property should extend to oil or gas produced from the property, the City Council was told this week by Grace Methodist Church, 2325 E. Third St.

The church advised councilmen by letter that it has the exemptions on its land and church building from ad valorem City of Long Beach and County of Los Angeles taxes.

Several years ago, the council was told, the church property was included in oil and gas leases with Atlantic Richfield Co.

Last August, the oil firm began crediting the church with oil and gas royalties, which, by June 30, totaled $718.75.

The church said Atlantic Richfield deducted $310.80 from the royalties for "production costs," and said this included $273.98 in "mining rights taxes" levied by the city and county.

The church contends that the mining rights tax is an ad valorem tax, and that its exemption from ad valorem taxes should, therefore, apply to the oil royalties.

Arguing that the tax was "illegally and wrongfully levied and collected," the church asked for a refund of the $273.98. Inasmuch as this is part of an overall community lease, the church said it did not have a breakdown between what went to the city and what to the county.

Councilmen are expected Tuesday to refer the matter to the city attorney.

City Looking to Get Lit Up

The city is looking for a man for some light work.

The Civil Service Board is accepting applications through next Friday for the position of illuminating engineer associate.

The position, which pays a monthly salary range of $859 to $1,061, involves engineering work in the planning of street lighting and other outdoor lighting systems for the city.

Also being sought by the city are applicants for jobs as electricians, at a monthly salary range of $626 to $774. Applications will be accepted through Sept. 5.

Further information and application forms may be obtained from the Civil Service Board, Room 332, Municipal Utilities Building, 215 W. Broadway.

Yorba Linda Cityhood Vote OKd After 4-Year Battle

Orange County Supervisors have decided on boundaries of the county's proposed 25th city and set Oct. 24 as the day 13,000 Yorba Lindans will vote on incorporation.

The 2,864-acre ranching-residential area in the northeastern part of the county has been notable thus far for being the birthplace of former vice president Richard M. Nixon and the storm center of incorporation and annexation battles for the past four years.

The action by the county board marked the end of an eight-year effort by incorporation proponents. It also signified compliance with a State Supreme Court ruling last May which placed jurisdiction on boundaries in the hands of the supervisors who had previously denied three incorporation petitions by Yorba Linda residents.

CRUX OF THE incorporation hassles has been the annexation of six portions of Yorba Linda by the city of Placentia within the past four years and the creation of "islands" of unincorporated territory between the annexations.

The unanimous vote by the board was to accept boundaries which deleted the Placentia annexations and established a 200-foot strip to link the unincorporated areas.

The vote followed a 90-minute hearing in a packed board room. Support for the boundary settlement came from placentia city officials and opposition to incorporation came from eight property owners and the Brea city attorney.

The board also set Thursday as deadline for filing papers for city council seats — even though there may be no city to represent.

Nomination papers are at the registrar of voters' office, 1119 E. Chestnut, Santa Ana. Five signatures are needed to get on the October ballot.

Fechteler Home From Viet

By BUCK LANIER
Navy Editor

A Long Beach destroyer, under fire seven times from shore batteries off Vietnam, arrived home Friday to an enthusiastic welcome at Pier 16.

The USS Fechteler came home six months to the day after she departed for operations with the 7th Fleet. Cmdr. Gene White of Los Alamitos is commanding officer.

While providing support on the gunline off Vietnam, her 5-inchers steadily pounded Viet Cong and North Vietnamese infiltration routes, gun emplacements, bunkers and storage areas.

During an eight-day period, the ship fired more than 1,900 rounds.

Fechteler also provided gunfire support during the amphibious operations Beacon Star and Beau Charger.

During Beau Charger, the ship came under intensive fire from North Vietnamese shore batteries.

Evasive maneuvering and rapid counterbattery fire kept the ship from being seriously damaged.

This occasion was one of her seven times under fire. Most engagements occurred while the ship was operating with the 7th Fleet's Sea Dragon forces — an operation designed to curtail the flow of equipment and supplies from North Vietnam to Viet Cong forces in the south.

During June and July the destroyer operated far up in the Tonkin Gulf on the Northern Search and Rescue Station, remaining at sea 40 days.

When the carrier Forrestal was rocked by explosions and fires in late July, Fechteler was one of the ships that helped search for survivors.

FROM MARSHALL ISLANDS TO LONG BEACH ARENA

This colorful choir of churchgoers from the Marshall Islands, Pacific Trust Territory, will be featured Sunday at 2 p.m. during the Assemblies of God missionary rally-parade at the Long Beach Arena. Director Sam Sasser, an Assemblies missionary, is shown with Mrs. Sasser standing behind choir. Choir members paid their own way so they could appear at 32nd annual convention, which runs to Tuesday noon.

Evangelistic meetings will be held nightly at 7:30. Afternoon prayer meetings are scheduled for 2 p.m., followed by daily Bible study at 3. This has proven a highly

CAMP MEETING TIME!

Colorful Salvation Army Here

Opening with a rally at 7:30 p.m. tonight in Municipal Auditorium, the Salvation Army of Southern California will hold its 10th annual Long Beach Camp Meeting. The meetings, all open to the general public, will be concluded on Sunday, Sept. 3. A cumulative attendance of 150,000 has been estimated.

The traditional colorful opening band parade will start Sunday (Aug. 27) at 5 p.m. Six Salvation Army bands, accompanied by the familiar banners and bonnets which have long become part of the American scene, will march down Broadway to Long Beach Boulevard, where they will converge for the grand march into the Auditorium.

Each day's sessions will include music by Salvation Army bands, soloists and singing groups.

Evangelistic meetings will be held nightly at 7:30. Afternoon prayer meetings are scheduled for 2 p.m., followed by daily Bible study at 3. This has proven a highly popular feature with Long Beach residents of all ages, over the past decade. Leaders of national international renown will be featured at the meetings, reports Brig. Orval A. Taylor, Southern California Divisional Commander.

They include Commissioner Erik Wickberg of London, international chief of staff; Lt. Commissioner William J. Parkings of San Francisco, Western territorial commander, who originated the L.B. meetings and will be specially honored tonight; Lt. Commissioner Paul J. Carlson of Chicago, central territorial commander, and Col. and Mrs. Leslie Pindred, field secretary for Canada and Bermuda.

Special emphasis nights have been designated as follows: Men's Night on Monday, Senior Citizens Night on Tuesday, Family Night on Wednesday, Woman's Night on Thursday, Youth Night on Friday. However, all are invited each night to share in the proceedings.

Afternoon meetings are also scheduled for 3 p.m. on both of the Sundays.

BIBLE STUDY THEME TOLD

"God's Better Things for Better People," is the theme for the daily Bible study to be conducted by Colonel Leslie Pindred, field secretary for The Salvation Army in Canada and Bermuda.

The classes are open to the public and are scheduled for 3 p.m., Monday through Friday at the auditorium.

The Epistle to the Hebrews will be the textbook and the five daily themes will be "A Better Revelation," "A Superior Saviour," "A Better Heritage," "A Better High Priest, Covenant and Sacrifice," and "Triumphant Faith and a Better Land."

Why Assemblies Top Latin-America Surge

By LES RODNEY

There are three good reasons why Pentecostals, headed by the Assemblies of God, are the most successful missionaries in the dynamic growth of Protestantism in South America, says Rev. Melvin L. Hodges, Assembly field secretary for everything South of the Border.

The mission leader, here for the six-day national convention of the Assemblies, offers these points to help explain why the 600,000 strong denomination, born as recently as 1914 in this country, has more Latin-American impact than the older, larger U.S. churches. (The Assemblies of God is now number one among Protestants in Brazil with over one million members, and also leads in Peru, Venezuela, Guatemala, Dominican Republic, El Salvador and is moving toward that spot in Chile.)

"We're a revival movement, with emphasis on the work of the Holy Spirit. This appeals to the Latin American temperament."

To put it another way, as Rev. Hodges sees it, Pentecostal (spirit-filled) Protestants are spiritual swingers, as opposed to the more formal and sometimes stately approach of others. And Latin Americans will respond most naturally to a sympathetic, charismatic fervor.

Rev. Hodges, "is that we put a stronger stress on indigenous (native-centered) leadership and control, and follow independent church principles."

This, amplifies the author of the book "The Indigenous Church," used widely as a textbook, "means putting the responsibility for carrying on work on the nationals themselves, rather than on foreign enterprise."

As to whether this emphasis helps combat anti-U.S. feelings: "Certainly. It works along with nationalism instead of going counter to the national spirit. They don't feel they are subject to a foreign body, and this makes for much better relationships with the missionaries."

A third factor, Rev. Hodges continues, is the teaching of lay people, the development of a lay ministry.

"I'm speaking about a truly broad base," Rev. Hodges explains, "not just three or four. We have over 30 Bible institutes in operation in Latin America."

Rev. Hodges was asked about the Assemblies position against "social action" in connection with the work in South America, where large areas of poverty exist. Is their missionary approach only spiritual, unaccompanied by technical, material help?

"I'll answer this way," the missionary leader said. "Nobody is doing more for the social situation in Latin America than the people who are preaching the gospel in the simple, evangelistic sense."

He explained this as the result of conversion, which means higher standards, "no more spending money on liquor, wanting more for their children." This indi-

Living at Peace With Yourself

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

"How can I live at peace with myself?" The question came from a successful businessman who was really troubled. "Many nights I wake up at four o'clock and just can't stop rehashing things, getting myself more and more upset over what I did or said. I turn hot and cold all over contemplating my stupidities and ineptitudes. How in heaven's name can I learn to live at peace with myself?"

During our conversation I happened to quote from Isaiah: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee: because he trusteth in Thee." I suggested to the businessman that this Bible text held an answer to his difficulties.

He asked me to repeat it. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee: because he trusteth in Thee." He listened intently and said he liked the sound of it. He said as he wrote it down that he was going to meditate on it.

A great many people suffer from the same miserable condition — not being at peace with themselves. Could be one reason is our current tendency to take ourselves too seriously. We push and nag ourselves as though what we can accomplish in a day determines the future wellbeing of family, business and even the whole community. Actually we are likely to achieve and contribute more, and also have more inner peace, if we cultivate the art of easy does-it. Peace of mind comes from not getting too hip on yourself.

CALVIN Coolidge was that kind of man. Coolidge lived in Northampton, Massachusetts. He was a lawyer. He walked to work each morning, passing on his way the home of a friend. Hiram was always

ELDER BENSON
Prominent Guest

Ezra T. Benson Will Address Mormons Here

Elder Ezra Taft Benson, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, will speak at the Long Beach Stake (diocese) Conference today and Sunday.

Elder Benson served during the eight-year Eisenhower Administration as U.S. Secretary of Agriculture. He is a long-time official of the Boy Scouts of America, and serves as a director of Corn Products Co. He was recently president of the European Mission of the Church with headquarters in Germany.

Benson, who has associated himself with the John Birch Society, has played a controversial political role since leaving the government.

Other visitors representing headquarters in Salt Lake City will be Elder Z. Reed Millar of the Home Teaching Committee and Elder Reed C. Durham, Jr., of the Sunday School Board.

Elder Millar has served two terms as assistant attorney general of Idaho. Elder Durham is an educator and manager of the staff of Salt Lake Institute adjacent to the University of Utah.

Meetings will be held Sunday at 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. at 3701 Elm Avenue. Stake President Francis M. Zimmerman announces that visitors are welcome.

GOINGS ON

Five young people from First Baptist who took part in a voluntary missionary program in the Hawaiian Islands during July will report on the venture at the 7 p.m. Sunday services in the church, 10th and Pine. Paying their own fare, they joined 20 other Southland American Baptist Convention church youngsters as vacation Bible school teachers, youth recreation leaders, youth church planning, and also performed manual labor with Hawaiian church youth. The 20-voice Melody Chorus, directed by Paul and Evelyn Swan, will present a concert Sunday, 7:30 p.m. at El Dorado Park Community's Service Under the Stars, 3655 Norwalk Blvd. Selections will range from great hymns to Negro spirituals. Featured will be Pam Swan Bryan, member of the Pasadena and USC Symphony Orchestra. Dr. John Ross, who with his wife Mabel has served for 17 years in an isolated area of the Congo serviced by plane only, will discuss that embroiled country Sunday at 10:15 a.m. in Bixby Knolls Christian, 1249 E. Carson St.

Los Altos Brethren, 6565 Stearns St., will present the Billy Graham film "London Crusade" Sunday, 7 p.m. The Galician Players of First Methodist of San Pedro, present "Curse You, Jack Dalton" tonight at 7:30 as part of a Gay 90's Night. Fun starts at 6:30 with a nice cream social. Dr. Norman Self, campus minister at Cal State, Long Beach, will be guest speaker for the Outrigger Club of Covenant Presbyterian, 3rd and Atlantic, Sunday, 7 p.m. Single adults from 35-55 invited. Dr. Charles Berry, founder-director of Straightway Ministries Inc., and former Catholic theologian, will speak Sunday at 11 a.m. 5:45 and 7 p.m. in Westminster Brethren, 14614 Magnolia Ave. Roaring 20s will be the theme of another Methodist ice cream social Sunday, this one at Los Altos, 5550 E. Willow St., with continuous musical entertainment by the combined youth groups from 1-6 p.m. Rev. Richard Logan, an official of the Los Angeles Presbytery, will be guest speaker Sunday 11 a.m. at Westminster Community Presbyterian, 2474 Pacific Ave.

Seattle Blaze Razes Boat Co.
SEATTLE (AP) — A three-alarm fire shot flames and clouds of smoke high over Seattle lake union waterfront late Friday, destroying the Grandy Boat Co. and threatening other property in the area.

Two firemen and three spectators were hurt, but none was believed in serious condition.

Bill Grandy, one of the large boat building and repair firm's owners, estimated damages would run between $300,000 and $500,000.

Students at Christian Science Meet Candidly Tell Feelings on Religion

BOSTON (AP) — Religious interest is mounting on American college campuses, students from several of them said today. But they added that it's not the conventional type of religion.

"Some people may say God is dead, but students are proving He's not dead," said Daniel S. Jensen of Fresno, Calif. State College.

"Today's students are more concerned about religion, not less."

However, it's an exploration, open-ended faith, minus many traditional forms and definitions, according to a sampling of youths at an international conference of Christian Science youth.

Students "are looking for real answers," said Jeannette Kleinhammer of the University of Kansas. Daniel Hill, a West Pointer added: "A real spiritual revolution is going on."

A SCORE of others from across the nation made similar comments. They are among about 8,000 college students at the three-day conference which opened Thursday.

Several observed that students today show a rebellious streak, but that the rebellion is at fixed formal patterns of religion, not at the basis of it.

In a keynote address, Erwin D. Canham, editor in chief of the Christian Science Monitor, touched on the same point, saying: "One of the few good things about the hipsters is their rejection of a materialistically orientated society. Also, I wish to endorse both love and flowers."

But he added that hippies distort attitudes into a useless escapism.

CANHAM SAID the world's "scientific and informational revolutions" may help show the way toward man's salvation by drawing humanity into its intended unity.

"They are powerful and irreversible forces," he said. "They will not lead to any inevitable Utopia. But they are forces we can utilize for the salvation of the human race."

The Living God

Anyone whose life has been touched by the healing power of divine Love, anyone whose prayers have brought a glimpse of what it means to be spiritually alive, knows from his own experience about "The Living God" spoken of in the Bible. Awareness of His presence comes in different ways to each individual. But it grows only with deep prayer and study. Christian Science Reading Rooms and church services are there to help. You are always welcome.

FROM THE PULPIT

None of us like to admit the darkness of this hour. We like to think that this internal threat of ours will pass; that people of all races will settle down and that a Christian spirit and attitude will prevail over the earth once more.

I do not believe it will be so. The outward indications are such as to denote an internal corruption. But at the same time, there is a bright light in man's darkest hour.

God sits above the circle of the world. "Only He who now leaveth will let." Men may deny Him, ridicule His Name, and live their lives as though He did not exist. But God is! And in that reign!

Do you know God in the forgiveness of sins? Have you accepted His Son as your Saviour?

For a ministry of gladness come to Calvary. Calvary is for you!

BRIEFLY . . .

Capital of Evangelism! War, Peace & Canada

Long Beach has to be the world capital of evangelism this weekend.

With the Arena already humming with the old-time fervor of the national convention of the Assemblies of God, the colorful Salvation Army of Southern California moves into the adjacent Municipal Auditorium starting tonight for its 10th annual Camp Meetings held here.

This town had its share of big revival meetings many years ago. Oldtimers who recall those days will agree after a look at the Pentecostal fervor of the Assemblies delegates and friends, and the always spirited men and lasses of the Corps, that though these 1967 meetings aren't as sprawling and dusty, there's plenty of "that old-time religion" left in this country.

Both groups, of course, have adapted to changing conditions, and operate with modern techniques and approaches. The Salvation Army, by the very nature of its interweaving with the community through its magnificent social services, has broadened its approaches even more. In this area, for example, the Corps is a member of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches. Its thrust is still Gen. Booth's immortal "Go For Souls! Go For the Worst!" but, report its Southland leaders, it finds more converts these days as a direct result of its social arms than on the drum-head.

A Long Beach welcome to the spirit-filled delegates of the Assemblies of God in their first national convention here, and to the stout-hearted men and women of the Southland Salvation Army, convening here for the 10th straight year. Despite dissimilarities of form, method, approach and history, they are very much on the same team, both will readily agree.

THE ISRAEL-Arab war, said Rev. Thomas Zimmerman, leader of the Assemblies of God, bears out Bible prophecy and confirms that the second coming of Jesus Christ is imminent. The interpretation of sections of the prophets Jeremiah and Ezekiel as forecasting recent Middle East events is generally shared by all Christians who take the Bible literally.

The theory is based on the prophets affirming that toward the end of the time of the Gentiles, Israel shall dwell securely in her own land. Also Ezekiel's prophecy concerning the valley of dry bones, coming together, later to be clothed with flesh. This is interpreted as symbolizing the regathering of the people of Israel, first as a political force, then as a spiritual force.

There are also parallels seen between sections of the Ezekiel, and St. Luke, and the fertility of Israeli farming, the manner of the military rout, and the taking over of the old portion of Jerusalem, also connected to the "end time."

There was something in Joshua too, wasn't there, about an Israelite chasing a thousand of the enemy?

ROMAN CATHOLIC Archbishop Paul J. Hallinan of Atlanta, Ga. believes peace should be the active concern of every Christian, but he won't join any peace demonstrations. He tells why in an article "The Second Mile to Peace" in the August issue of the magazine Extension.

"Demonstrations and petitions have their place," he says, "Sometimes they can add decisiveness to the squeaky voice of the national conscience. But full-page ads and mobilizations often perform only the limit task of reassuring those who already agree, or almost

So what SHOULD someone do? Hallinan cites three things he believes the Christian must do to help build peace:

"The Christian must enlarge this new climate of thought that makes peace not just desirable, but possible. Our age prides itself on science, technology and power; it is unreasonable to argue today that war is still the right way to restore violated rights. We have at hand many channels of influence — ordinary conversations, lectures, books, pamphlets, thinking and discussion groups."

"The Christian must urge in detail a particular course of action. This requires study and prayer, a cleansing of old prejudices, an insight into new approaches, a will to go beyond the knee jerks of the hawk and the dove. Surely there is nothing incongruous about a Catholic who advocates mutual agreements, inspections and safeguards. If he works to bolster an international body for peace, is he doing anything more exotic than following the words of Christ?"

"The Christian can insist that our government pursue wholeheartedly and repeatedly, every opening that has even the slightest hope of a peaceful settlement. We must insist that our allies do it, too."

FOR WHAT it is worth — Officials of the United Church of Canada with whom we chatted at Expo 67 in Montreal during our vacation agree there are many "bugs" in the union of most of the country's major Protestant denominations, but they also made these positive points:

— Membership levels have either been maintained or gone up.

— In actual practice, there is "unity without uniformity," that is, traditions and practices of the individual denominations remain, by design, very much alive within the United Church.

— Most important, we were told, there has been a marked increase in the numbers of "educated young people" who were formerly passing by the organized church. This, they hold, is because of the greater power of attraction of a Protestant church which is not divided. Relations with the Roman Catholic Church are also more friendly than before, as exemplified by the joint Christian Pavilion at Expo.

— Practical works of Christian witness, whether in Canada or abroad, are said to be far more speedy and effective without what they call the wastefulness of competition and overlapping.

Leaders of the United Church of Canada may not be the most objective about their organization, and undoubtedly there are other points of view. However, this, in general, is what its own people are saying about it. . . . RODNEY.

OSCAR WINNER

Mary Janey, gospel recording artist who was awarded an Oscar as Best Female Vocalist of the Year, will appear in concert Sunday, 7 p.m. in First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road, with the public invited. Her most recent album "Chapel Bells" is a best seller in the field. Once a promising dance band singer, she turned to Christianity and has appeared in churches, at rallies and over radio and TV.

Tough Questions on Religion Asked at USC

A faculty group at the University of Southern California is asking some tough-minded questions about religion in the megapolopolis.

And the group is crossing the fences that divide academic disciplines to get answers.

Their purpose: To develop a new graduate program in religion at USC, geared to research and training for both urban and suburban clergy, and church-related agencies and services.

Dr. John E. Cantelon, director of the School of Religion at USC, said the graduate program will be conducted in conjunction with USC's multidisciplinary Institute of Urban Ecology. The program, to begin in 1968, will offer master's and doctoral degrees in religion and urban studies.

THE POWER OF FAITH

By WOODY ISHMAEL
AP Newsfeatures

Jerome Eisenberg, antiquarian, numismatist and director of the Royal-Athena Galleries in New York City, has a faith that knows no national boundaries.

In June, 1961, he established the Eisenberg Museum of Egyptian and Near Eastern Antiquities at the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. It was given in honor of his parents and dedicated to them because "I wanted to do something for them while they were still alive."

This all came about through Eisenberg having an earlier chance meeting with Dr. E.J. Vardaman of the Seminary over a case of ancient coins in a museum in Jerusalem. Both being interested in Judeo-Christian antiquities, they formed a firm and lasting friendship. When Eisenberg decided to give the museum it was only natural that his friend Dr. Vardaman and the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary would be the recipient. The archaeological materials in the museum are invaluable to student and the general public interested in the everyday life of the Bible period.

Raised in a devout Jewish home, Eisenberg bases the strength of his faith on the Golden Rule. From an early age his parents, who were teachers, stimulated his interest in ancient history. His collections of religious antiquities cover all ages and all religions as pictured above. At the top, a 14th century French Saint woodcarving. Center, a North Syrian idol from the Canaanite period over 3000 years old. And bottom, a Siamese bronze Buddha from the 13th century. Dr. Vardaman in his praise of Eisenberg said, "he is the Renaissance man in the 20th century."

Anniversary

CLEVELAND, Tenn. (UPI) — The Church of God, America's oldest Pentecostal Church, recently celebrated its 81st anniversary. The church, which had its beginning in a crude meetinghouse about two miles from the Tennessee-North Carolina border, has advanced in fourscore years from eight pioneers into a body of 827,656 members around the world.

Purdue Campus Minister Leads Crusade Challenge

First Christian Church, at Fifth and Locust, will conduct a series of meetings called "A Crusade Challenge" starting Wednesday and featuring as challenge speaker Douglas Dickey, campus minister at Purdue University in Indiana.

Services will be held 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 7 p.m. on Sunday, Sept. 3.

Also featured each evening will be a sacred concert led by First Christian's own popular soloists, Roger Koerner and Charles Magnuson.

Pastor Gore Honors Due

Rev. Herman Gore Sr., pastor of Christ Second Baptist Church, will receive an honorary merit Degree of Doctor of Divinity in a ceremony at the church Sunday, 7:30 p.m.

Conferring the honor will be Dr. Benjamin F. Martin, president of United Theological Seminary of Monroe, La.

GORE MARTIN

logical Seminary of Monroe, La.

Rev. Gore, pastor since 1950, shepherded the church to its recent successful building of a $250,000 chapel at New York and California Avenues.

The seminary, which designs its curriculum to meet the needs of "in service" pastors and directors of Christian education who do not have the time to attend college elsewhere, has nine extension centers in Louisiana, one in Illinois, and will open one in the Southern California area shortly.

Gift to School

Several Spanish shawls and an oil painting of the birthplace of Rudecinda Sepulveda Dodson have been given to Dodson Junior High School in San Pedro through the will of Mrs. Florence Dodson Schone-man. The school was named after Mrs. Schone-man's mother, an early settler of the area.

72-Year-Old Bishop Sheen 'Shaking Them Up' in N.Y.

By PAUL HOFFMANN
New York Times Service

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — A simple brass pole on which a blacksmith has mounted a crucifix is the unconventional crozier that the Most Rev. Fulton J. Sheen carries wherever he officiates at solemn rites as Roman Catholic bishop of Rochester.

But most of the time he wears no insignia of his high office. He looked like a busy and eager parish priest the other day when he climbed the stairs of the county poorhouse with the agility of a man much younger than his 72 years to say mass for the residents.

The pastoral intensity shown at the poorhouse and the informality that did away with the traditional gilt and ornate crozier are some of many changes that the Bishop was brought to Rochester.

"BISHOP SHEEN sure is shaking us up," one of his priests said. "Many of us still wonder whether he's our bishop. Maybe his assignment here is a Vatican ploy to groom him for the Archdiocese of New York or for a cardinalate."

Bishop Sheen himself remarked during a recent three-hour interview:

"I am here to do the work the Holy See assigned me, and I expect to spend the rest of my working days here."

The bishop still turns out his newspaper column, which appears from coast to coast and plans to tape a new series of television shows in the autumn for use by stations across the nation. Yet, with the changes that he has brought to the hitherto rather staid religious life of Rochester, Bishop Sheen himself seems changed.

To millions of television viewers and to readers of his more than 60 books, the silver-haired prelate with the magnetic eyes and the knack for the catchy phrase had appeared as a glossy proselytizer for a peace-of-mind faith with conservative overtones.

IN ROCHESTER, instead, he is startling suburbanites by stressing his concern for the inner-city ghetto and his support for a militant Negro organization.

He has said mass for 50 Puerto Ricans crowded into two slum rooms and urged his clergy to revive the early Christian "house church" by offering mass in private homes and taking there the consecrated host for nocturnal adoration in improvised "centers of spirituality."

In his observance of the National Day of Prayer, Bishop Sheen advocated unilateral withdrawal of United States forces from Vietnam.

Asked later whether he had pondered what would happen if the U.S. were to make a one-sided decision to pull its troops out of Vietnam, the bishop replied:

"What happens to a man who turns the other cheek? Maybe he will be struck again, maybe he won't. . . . We would set an example such as has never happened before in history."

To the bishop, the whole world and all its problems are reflected in his diocese in what he calls "a cameo view — this diocese is a microcosm."

SINCE HIS ARRIVAL here last Dec. 15, he has brought in nuns with experience in social work and created a "secular mission," whose three priests go into trailer camps, villages and farms "wherever there is a door to knock on and a soul to save."

He has discussed a plan to buy space in secular newspapers to express Catholic views because "the Catholic press talks only to Catholics like trade journals — as a taxidermist talks to other taxidermists."

The bishop has begun sounding out Protestant denominations on plans to create an "ecumenical seminary" and he has asked Protestant scholars as well as a former Communist from Britain, to convert to Catholicism, to become teachers in diocesan seminaries.

Soon after his arrival here, Bishop Sheen visited the Church of the Immaculate Conception in the city's third ward ghetto. A few days later he appointed the church's assistant pastor, Rev. David Fink, as episcopal vicar in charge of the inner city's problems, such as housing, education, employment, health, "social justice, equality and the sharing of the common heritage of American well-being and Christian."

It was the bishop's first appointment, and Father Fink believes he is the only episcopal vicar for inner-city problems in the nation.

FATHER FINKS told a visitor: "The thing I like about Bishop Sheen is that he has great instincts. . . . He loves people; he has a real feeling for the poor."

Another priest, who was interviewed separately, declared: "The appointment of Father Fink has alienated many middle-class Catholics here because he is so thoroughly involved in FIGHT."

The acronym stands for Freedom, Integration, God, Honor — today, a group developed by Saul D. Alinsky.

TODAY'S CONFERENCE EVENTS

Will Name Teen Winners

Winners in two national contests will be announced today during the Assemblies of God convention at Long Beach Arena — the denomination's fourth annual Christ's Ambassadors (youth) Teen Talent Search and the fifth annual Teen Bible Quiz.

Ten Talent Search recognized musical ability in six categories — instrumental, vocal, and keyboard solo, and instrumental, vocal and keyboard ensembles.

Winners are here competing after taking regional, district and sectional laurels.

Morning highlights will be two 7 o'clock breakfasts — Men's Fellowship, and Women's Missionary Council. Men will meet in the Municipal Auditorium exhibit hall, women in the Lafayette Hotel International Ball Room.

Addressing the men will be Glen B. Bonds, formerly of Pomona, national Men's Fellowship secretary. Women will hear Mrs. Joseph Gerhart, Santa Cruz, Calif. About 1,000 to 1,100 are expected to attend each.

Speaking during a 9 a.m. devotional will be Rev. William T. H. Richards, London, England, 1987 conference chairman of the Assemblies of God in Great Britain.

After hearing departmental and executive reports a community organizer who calls himself a "professional radical" and was brought to Rochester by Protestant churches in 1965.

"The bishop's support for FIGHT has caused many Catholics to drop buttons into the collection plate," an influential resident remarked.

The bishop said Father Fink "works beautifully as my alter ego" in the inner city and that FIGHT deserved "great praise in calming the people, pleading for order" in the recent riots in which one person was killed.

vidual transformation, he believes, is the key starting point for large social solutions.

As to whether the Pentecostal missionary work plays any role in combating communism in South America, Rev. Hodges replied: "We don't preach anti-communism. Many people in Latin America do not see the atheist side of communism. We would be misunderstood if we preached directly against communism."

Basically, of course, he added, the message of religion is anti-communist in nature.

"Let's put it this way," Rev. Hodges declared. "If you're going to have a great strong movement for God in any section of a population, you are going to finally have anti-communism, because these people will be moved away from the materialist way of thinking to the spiritual."

Those won to Pentecostal Protestantism, whether in Latin America or this country, he said, "find an experience that is real in their heart, it is Christ in their heart, a change from theory to living reality."

During July in Rio, he reminded, the World Pentecostal Fellowship meetings were held in a stadium seating 30,000 during the week. It was filled to overflowing. On Sunday we moved to the big soccer stadium and had more than 120,000.

He sees no reason for the growth of Protestantism to slacken off from the pace which has already seen it win more than 10 million Latin-American adherents, mostly Pentecostal.

"This wave is just really beginning. Brazil and Chile you might say are in the adolescent stage, the others are only starting. We should see it . . ."

By GEORGE LEDERER

Buzzie Bavasi does not believe in tearing up contracts and handing out mid-season bonuses.

But, because Bill Singer is tearing up the league and represents the one bonus of the Dodgers' disappointing season, Bavasi will consider a prize for Singer's Christmas stocking.

"I'll probably start him early on next year's payroll," said the general manager after watching another splendid rendition by the Meister Singer Friday night.

Singer was a 2-1 winner over the St. Louis Cardinals

DODGER OF DAY

BILL SINGER won seventh in row, also doubled and scored as Dodgers split doubleheader with Cardinals.

In the first game of the season's only two-night doubleheader at Dodger Stadium, the Cardinals won the second game, 4-1, as Orlando Cepeda hit his 23rd homer and drove in another run for a total of 99 RBI.

Even the attendance was a bonus. The paid figure was 40,740, a record at Dodger Stadium this season.

Singer not only turned back the league leaders, but he gained instant entry into the club's Hall of Fame as the first Dodger to conquer Larry Jaster. He also helped himself with the bat.

The first extra-base hit for Singer in the majors led to his first run en route to his seventh consecutive victory and ninth in 13 decisions.

Since the All-Star break, Singer has come reasonably close to Sandy Koufax in all but salary. There, the comparison is ridiculous and Bavasi intends to do something about it.

Koufax received $125,000 for his final season. Singer is making $85,000.

Bavasi said a 100 percent increase for Singer would not be out of line. "He's deserving of $15,000 or so next year," said Bavasi, "but I'll probably do something better. I'll also put him on the payroll early."

"If he had replaced Koufax completely and if we had won the pennant, he probably would have been worth 30,000 next year."

With another 100 percent increase, Singer could enter such a bracket by the start of 1969, when he will be only 25.

Unbeaten since July 7, Singer has an 0-30 earned run average for his last nine starts, seven wins and two draws. In this stretch of 69 2-3 in innings he has struck out 61.

For the season, Singer's 2.51 ERA leads the Dodgers' four regular starters.

Singer was lucky in one respect. Lou Brock led off the game with a single and Curt Flood followed with a hit, fielded by Singer. His hurried throw to first base was wide, but hit umpire Ken Burkhardt in the leg and was retrieved by Wes Parker, near the bag.

"Burkhardt saved me a run, probably the game," said Singer. "It looked like the ball would go all the way into the right field corner and I'm sure Brock would have scored."

The Cardinals scored in the sixth inning on singles by Roger Maris and Mike Shannon. Shannon drove in the run on Singer's first pitch after Tim McCarver was walked intentionally.

Last season Jaster shut out the Dodgers a record five times in a row. He still has a lifetime 1.44 ERA against the Dodgers and has held them to a batting average of .169.

Al Jackson (8-4), with help from Jack Lamabe and Joe Hoerner, was the second-game winner over Jim Brewer (5-4).

Julian Javier singled home the Cards' first run in the third inning and Maris broke up a 1-1 duel with his home run into the left field seats in the fourth. Ron Perranoski yielded the last two runs.

BALTIMORE — Frank Robinson is seeing double. Rogo Powell is hitting .230 and the pitching staff belongs in Mayo Clinic.

They say that Hank Bauer may not be back next year.

Naturally, you must also wonder about Joe Brown.

Good old Joe is the groundskeeper at Memorial Stadium where Friday night's doubleheader was not played because it had rained Thursday night.

Joe, it seems, had failed to put out the tarpaulin. "I called three weathermen," said Joe Brown, shaking his head, "and they all said it wasn't going to rain."

Joe should have known better. Jim McGlothlin was scheduled to pitch for the Angels.

So it rained on the unprotected infield all night Thursday and, although Friday came up clear, the field was unplayable.

"Someone had to get hurt," said Bill Rigney. "You couldn't play 18 innings on that field without a Fregosi or Knoop or Reichardt getting hurt."

So McGlothlin (10-5) and Curt Simmons (1-1) will face Tom Phoebus (11-8) and Wally Rucker (3-5) tonight.

Last year, in the former University of Minnesota star's rookie season, Hudson led the Hawks in scoring with an 18.4 point average. The slender 6-5 forward averaged 22.6 in nine playoff games.

Bosox Add Sock to Pennant Hopes, Sign A's Harrelson

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Boston Red Sox, embroiled in the heated American League pennant race, Friday signed first baseman Ken Harrelson to an "agreement of terms" after the slugger had been cut loose by Kansas City owner Charles O. Finley in the wake of a player feud.

Harrelson signed with the Red Sox in Boston and immediately flew home to Savannah, Ga. He will join the team on Monday in New York but is not expected to be placed on the roster until Sept. 1 when the "agreement" will become a contract.

The Red Sox would have to cut another player from the roster in order to activate Harrelson before Sept. 1. On that date, however, the 25-man player limit is lifted.

Harrelson, who is batting

273 with nine homers and 40 runs batted in, was released by Finley on Monday after publicly criticizing the A's owner's decision to fire manager Alvin Dark. Harrelson was the leading hitter on the last-place A's.

Finley touched off a player revolt by suspending without pay pitcher Lew Krausse and firing him $500 for an alleged incident on a plane during a recent A's road trip. When the player issued a statement through player representative Jack Aker criticizing Finley's handling of the situation, Finley fired Dark for "losing control of the team."

Harrelson, who allegedly called Finley a "menace to baseball" but later denied it, was set adrift the following day. Krausse subsequently been reinstated but the A's have asked for a grievance hearing before baseball commissioner William Eckert.

The Red Sox did not disclose what they paid Harrelson, who became a free agent Thursday night after a 72-hour waiting period following his release by the A's. A Boston spokesman called it "a few dollars."

The Red Sox were in Chicago for a crucial five-game series with the White Sox.

Long Beach's first—and maybe last—professional football game will be played tonight at 8 in Veterans Stadium when the Admirals open the Continental League season against a team that hasn't lost a game in more than three years, the Seattle Rangers.

Admirals general manager Bob Spiller announced Friday that the franchise would be moved to Portland, Ore., unless at least 6,000 Long Beach fans buy tickets tonight.

Last week's home exhibition against Sacramento drew only 2,000, not all of them paid.

"We explored the possibilities of Honolulu, Fresno, Las Vegas and Portland," Spiller said. "And the best potential is in Portland. It's a metropolitan area with the kind of fan that will identify with his team."

"We have worked out stadium dates, the facility is more than adequate. Now we'll just wait and see."

The Admirals, still feeling their way along the first-year route, dropped their two pre-season contests, but demonstrated again in Sacramento that they'll be tough defensively. The club from Ronald Reagan's headquarters nabbed a 6-0 victory, but only because of two field goals.

To report that the Admirals will have their work cut out for them this evening is an understatement. Seattle fans can hardly recall when their team last lost a game. The Rangers used more players than the Rams in downing Eugene last week, 19-3.

The lack of an Admiral offense in the pre-season encounters has stunned not only owner-coach Shelby Calhoun, but also Long Beach fans who have been accustomed to seeing Long Beach State's record-breaking quarterback, Jack Reilly, score consistently the past two campaigns with ex-college teammate, Jack Tucker.

The presence of ex-Poly High and Wyoming U. halfback Joe Pearson tonight could spell the difference. Pearson didn't play the last two games because of injuries, but he's scheduled to go the route tonight.

With Frank DiGennaro, a 200-pound fullback surprise, and with quarterback halfback-you-name-it Earl Ferguson from Cerritos College, the Admirals have the guns to score. They've already shown they have the defense.

Seattle, with its brilliant long-time record, leaves nothing to the imagination as to the reason it has reached such a peak.

Eagles Make It 6-3, NFL

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Veteran Norm Snead threw three touchdown passes, including a 40-yarder to rookie Chuck Hughes in the closing seconds, to lead the Philadelphia Eagles to a 38-30 victory Friday night over the Buffalo Bills of the American League in an exhibition game.

THE EAGLES, who stretched the NFL exhibition edge over the AFL to 6-3, tied their cake with 11 seconds remaining with another six-pointer, on Joe Scarpati's 40-yard jaunt with an intercepted pass. It was his second scoring theft of the night, an earlier one covering 60 yards.

Until Snead hit Hughes, it appeared as though Buffalo's Jack Kemp, who had been riding the bench, would emerge as the game's hero.

WITH SLIGHTLY more than six minutes remaining in the game, Kemp rushed in to replace Tom Florio, who injured his right thumb when tackled after a 14-yard run.

As the ball was snapped, Kemp faded back, spotted flanker Elbert Dubenion racing downfield and connected for a 64-yard touchdown pass that put the Bills ahead, 26-24. Mike Mercer's placement added the 27th point.

Huff Sets Trap for Pats' 1-Man Gang

United Press International — Sam Huff, who made his reputation in the National Football League in his duels with a renowned former Syracuse fullback, clashes with another ex-Syracuse star this afternoon when the Washington Redskins, undefeated in two previous starts, join the inter-league battle against the American Football League Boston Patriots.

Huff's name became almost synonymous with the ruggedness of linebacking when he headed the New York Giants' defensive unit against Jimmy Brown of the Cleveland Browns in the late 1950s and early 60s.

Today the 33-year-old veteran of 12 NFL seasons will attempt to rally the Redskins' defense against the charges of Jim Nance, who steamrolled his way over 1,458 yards to set an AFL record as he walked off with rushing honors.

Nance was virtually a one-man gang for the Patriots last season. He carried the ball 299 times, also a league record, and churned out an amazing 4.88 yards per carry, including 11 touchdowns, high in the league.

The passing combination of Babe Parilli and Gino Cappelletti serve to complement Nance's rushing, but the Patriots can move only when their 6-foot-1, 245-pounder can pick up vital yardage on the ground.

Nance will be looking for his first touchdown against an NFL team. In their only other encounter against NFL opponents the Pats were crushed, 33-3, by the Baltimore Colts.

The emergence of Joe Don Looney and A.D. Whitfield as prime running backs has given the usually pass-happy Skins a balanced attack. Jim Ninowski,

WILL CROSS BURN CHARGERS SUNDAY?

Irv Cross, one of the Rams, defensive specialists, hopes to burn the Chargers Sunday with more big punt and kickoff returns in the first intra-state, inter-league football game at San Diego Stadium. Cross has averaged better than 11 yards on 6 punt returns and 26 yards on 3 kickoff runbacks.

Meaningless Game? 'No Such Thing,' Says Olsen

By AL LARSON — "There's no such thing as a meaningless game," Merlin Olsen said Friday as the Rams made final preparations for Sunday's combat with the San Diego Chargers.

"We'd like to play it as a pre-season game, but we can't. The thing is we have much to lose and not much to gain. You can be sure they're going to play it just as if it was a league game." The Rams' six-year veteran defensive tackle feel the Chargers have been pointing for this day for a long time.

"We've only seen two Charger films, but I imagine they've seen far more Ram films. The game has a lot of spectator appeal, but come Sept. 16 we'll still be 0-0."

Olsen will be matched against five-year veteran guard Walt Sweeney in his own personal war, but he warned, "You don't get to know the man looking at him in films."

"After I play against Sweeney I'll know his strengths and weaknesses. Sweeney did a fine job on Alex Karras last week and he's a quantity I know. So I have to rate him accordingly."

Irv Cross, who week in and week out draws the job of tracking down the top receivers in football, will be shadowing Gary Garrison Sunday.

"He didn't play much in the two films we saw, so I don't have much of a line on him. We know he's especially dangerous on the deep pass."

Cross, in addition to back peddling on pass plays from his cornerback post, is a key member on the special unit teams. He's averaged better than 11 yards on six returns in three pre-season games. Irv also came up with a big play last week against the Browns when he blocked Lou Groza's field goal attempt in the first quarter.

Dick Bass said he doesn't approve of Green Bay coach Vince Lombardi's tactics when it comes to hitting a player.

"I wouldn't stand for Lombardi slapping me. To excel, every player has his own method of building up a hatred for the opposition. I start on a Monday and go right through the week getting mentally prepared."

Overlooked in the second touchdown drive last week was the play in which the Rams caught the Browns with only 10 men on the field.

"They were missing a cornerback so I called an audible at the line of scrimmage," Roman Gabriel said. "Instead of throwing to McDonald, I noticed a safetyman rushing over to cover Bill Truax, but Bill broke back and made the big catch for 24 yards."

In addition, the Browns were assessed an additional 15 yards for roughing Gabriel, which netted the Rams 39 yards on the play.

PRO-O-RAMA: Look for a big improvement in the Rams' running game this season, and particularly in getting that hard-down yardage. That's the confident prediction of the Rams' bad carrier who is currently leading the ground assault. Fullback Lester Josephson, one of the team's four captains, is already off to the best start of his pro career, and the overall running attack has improved with him. With Dick Bass being held out of action until the first game on Sept.

Cleveland Suffers Fourth Loss in Row

ATLANTA (UPI) — Second-year quarterback Randy Johnson put on a precision passing performance Friday night to lead the Atlanta Falcons to a surprise 34-21 victory over the Cleveland Browns.

It gave the Falcons a record of two wins and a tie so far in the exhibition season and was the fourth successive loss for the Browns who were favored to win their division title in regular season play.

Johnson completed 20 of 28 passes for 193 yards and three touchdowns as he got the Falcons off to a 21-0 start by midway through the second period.

The Browns finally came to life in the final minutes of the first half after a pass interception by Dale Lindsey. Veteran quarterback Frank Ryan got the Browns on the scoreboard with a little more than a minute to play with a 49-yard touchdown pass to Paul Warefield.

The Browns moved to catch up in the third period when they cut the gap to 21-17 on a five-yard touchdown pass from Ryan to Gary Collins and a 22-yard field goal by Lou Groza.

But, the Falcons came roaring back in the final period with a 35-yard touchdown run by Ron Rector and field goals of 26 and 25 yards by Wade Traynham.

The Browns made the

Jungle Road Pick in Del Mar Derby

DEL MAR — Stretch-runnings Jungle Road is the probable choice in a field of 10 of the finest 3-year-olds on the West Coast in today's 23rd running of the $30,000-added Del Mar Derby at a mile and one-eighth.

His opposition will include Adolfe, Charlie Boots, Rivet, Gentlemen Game, Decider, Kahl Kabee, Dr. Isby, Sun Seeker and Cusimero. If all 10 go to the post, the gross purse will be $32,700 with $17,850 going to the winner.

Jungle Road accounted for the La Jolla Mile in his last start at the seaside course, scoring by two lengths in the race record time of 1:34 3/5.

Racing secretary Barry Whitehead has put together a strong card with several interesting supporting features.

enough left to fight off the late bids of longshot Single Needle and Guenie in the final sixteenth.

Quicken Tree, the 9-5 choice in the field of 10 grass specialists, closed stoutly to be fourth after going the extreme outside on the stretch turn.

Born Book negotiated the mile and one-sixteenth over Del Mar's infield turf course in 1:44 1-5 and rewarded his backers with $9.20, $5.00 and $3.60. Single Needle paid $16.80 and $10.20 and Guenie returned $3.80.

The victory was Born Book's sixth in 18 starts in 1967 and fifth since being haltered by "miracle man" Jones, Del Mar's perennial champion conditioner.

Three riders scored doubles on the ninth-race program. Bill Mahorney took the first on Edward C. G. at $29.80 and the third aboard Desert Dee for a $4.60 payoff, apprentice Jim Trujillo tallied aboard Abney's Fable at $9.60 in the fourth and Enchanted Land at $11.60 in the sixth and Donald Pierce won the seventh on Alpine Peak at $5.60 and the ninth on Roberto M. at $4.80. The daily double, from Edward C.G. to Range, a $6.60 winner of the second, paid $111.60.

Rival Breaks Ohio Special Trots to Win

Breaks, which probably have more to do with winning or losing in harness racing than in any other sport, decided the outcome of Friday's $10,000 River-side Trot at Hollywood Park.

However, the breaks referred to above are those made by horses who go off gait, and that is how Ohio Special wound up in the winner's circle after the Riverside.

French-bred Meteore II, a strongly-backed second choice at 9-5, was leading by a length in mid-stretch and appeared headed for victory when he went off stride and continued on a break to the wire.

Meanwhile, Ohio Special, whose move at Meteore II likely had something to do with the latter's jumping, rolled past and tallied by an official 1 1/2 lengths in 2:02 flat.

Although Meteore II still was second at the wire, he was disqualified and placed sixth for an extended break in the stretch.

Longshot players in the crowd of 8,302 collected $23.40, $13.80 and $6 across

Velasquez on 4 Winners for Second Day in Row

MAYS LANDING, N.J. (UPI) — Jockey Jorge Velasquez, who rode four winners Wednesday, came up with four more at Atlantic City Friday.

Velasquez rode three of them in a row, starting with Francis Xavier in the third race at $6.60. He came back with Annie Freeze in the fourth at $3.20 and with Swimm Hole in the fifth at $4.20. The Panamanian rider later scored with Amerigo Hill in the seventh at $4.20.

Siempre Listo, a Chilean horse, won for the first time this year when he scored in the feature race by a length and one-quarter over Bold Bard with Bag Of Ice third.

Joe Cullmore rode Siempre Listo over six furlongs on a sloppy track in 1:10 1-5 to return $22.40 $8.20 and $4.20 across the board. Bold Bard paid $6.00 and $3.40 and Bag Of Ice paid $3.00.

The regulations were adopted with relatively little discussion. Some of those attending repeated the argument that, because of traveling hunters, daily limits should be less and possession limits should permit possession of two days' shoot.

The argument was rejected because of enforcement problems. Other waterfowl seasons set were black brant, Nov. 18 to Feb. 18, four a day and eight in possession, and Jack Snipe, Nov. 18 to Jan. 6, eight a day and sixteen in possession.

All other waterfowl regulations were the same as last year.

Net Marathon Goes 2nd Day

BROOKLINE, Mass. (UPI) — Roy Emerson of Australia and Ronnie Barnes of Brazil outlasted South Africa's Cliff Drysdale and Ray Moore in a 60-game first set but had their quarter-final match postponed by rain and darkness in the fourth set Friday in the 87th U.S. National Doubles Tennis Championships at Longwood.

Emerson, the champion with Fred Stolle, and Barnes held a 31-29, 6-8, 6-3 lead when the match was called after three hours, 55 minutes.

The play will resume today with the score tied 6-6 in the fourth set of the best-of-five match.

In the first set, believed to be a U.S. championship record, Barnes was broken in the fifth game and Moore in the tenth. Both teams failed to cash in on break opportunities until Emerson and Barnes, seeded No. 3 among foreign entries, managed to turn the trick against Drysdale to end the set after two hours, 28 minutes.

Drysdale netted a Barnes backhand for the deciding point.

Only two games earlier, with Moore serving, Emerson and Barnes had two set points. However, Moore held on with the help of a pair of aces.

With the quarterfinals staggered over two days, starting Thursday, Australia's Bill Bowrey and Owen Davidson, the No. 2 foreign seed, defeated Mexican Davis Cup teammates Joaquin Loyo-Mayo and Marcelo Lara, 6-1, 11-9, 16-14.

Cerrudo, Smith in Title Duel

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Ron Cerrudo and Bob Smith, two members of the California Whiz Kids who have dominated amateur golf for two years, charged in to the semifinals of the 65th Western Amateur Friday.

Cerrudo, the Western runner-up last year, was seven under par for the day. Smith, the 1965 Western champion, was four under. Each was 12 under for the tourney.

Texas Marty Fleckman, complaining, "My game just isn't jelling," had a struggle but reached the semifinals. So did 20-year-old Chip Stewart of Dallas, Tex., who upset Rodney Horn of Prairie Village, Kan., 2 and 1 in the quarterfinals.

In the semifinals today Smith faces Stewart and Cerrudo meets Fleckman in a pair of 18-hole matches. The 18-hole finals follow in the afternoon.

Smith, the medalist at 280, squeezed past 17-year-old Tommy Watson of Kansas City 1-up in the quarterfinals after beating Charles Borner of Lincoln, Neb., 4 and 3.

Watson, the Missouri Amateur champion, squared the match on No. 10, and it stayed that way until No. 15 when Smith sank a 25-foot birdie putt. Both shot par the last three holes.

Frazier Can't Hide From Buster the Blimp Forever

RHINEBECK, N.Y. (UPI) — The "Blimp" looks like he might finally get his career off the ground.

Buster Mathis was dubbed the amateur boxer most likely to succeed as a professional way back in 1964 after he had beaten Joe Frazier twice and won a berth on the Olympic team.

But bad things suddenly began happening.

Buster broke his hand and couldn't go to Tokyo for the Olympics, and Frazier, who took his place on the United States team, ran away with the gold medal and all the glory.

Ever since Mathis turned pro back in 1965, folks who are still interested in the fight game have been waiting to see just how good he really is. But they haven't gotten a chance to find out because the bulky lad set out on a whirlwind tour, meeting a parade of unknown club fighters in small towns.

He won 20 consecutive fights, but nobody really sat up and took notice. After all, victories over Johnny Shore in Rock Island, Ill., Charley Polite in White Plains, N.Y., and Tom Swift in Portland, Me., aren't exactly headline-grabbers.

The time has arrived, however, for Buster to show what talent he's got packed away in that 6-foot-3, 245-pound frame. The kid who was born in Sledge, Miss., moves into Madison Square Garden on Sept. 18 as the featured attraction in a 10-round bout with Ron Marsh, another young prospect with 22 victories against one loss.

It will mark the New York debut of the now, confident Buster Mathis, whose profile is a mere wisp compared to his previous 360 pounds. Cus D'Amato, the Svengali who turned Mathis into a svelt figure, will be gone along with the extra pounds.

D'Amato, who formerly guided the careers of Floyd Patterson and Jose Torres, was replaced as Mathis' trainer by Joe Fariello when Peers Inc., the group that owns Buster, wondered when its investment would start paying some dividends.

"This is a dream every fighter has," said Buster at his private upstairs training camp. "The chance to fight in a main event at Madison Square Garden."

The barnstorming years weren't wasted, according to Mathis.

"I had problems with my weight when I started," he said, "but I think Cus held me back a little too much. I think I've got a better trainer now. I'm ready to fight anybody."

The frustration of being overlooked while Frazier went on to become the top contender for the title has been a cocklebur in Buster's trunk. When Frazier is asked when he will finally avenge his amateur losses to Mathis, the top contender replies, "Mathis, now where have I heard that name?"

"He knows who I am," said Buster, "and he can't run away. It's got to come to pass that we'll fight. I think Frazier's a good fighter, but I think I'm just as good. He knows what he's saying when he shrugs me off. If I was someone else, I wouldn't want to fight me, either."

"Who has he fought?" added Mathis. "George Chuvalo, a guy 197 years old; Doug Jones, just about everybody is stopping him nowadays; Billy Daniels, did he ever beat anybody?"

"These guys didn't even fight him back. The fighters I've met don't have as big names, but they fight back and I've gotten a lot of experience. Wayne Heath, for instance, is well-known out in California, and I had a fight on my hands. I'm not looking for easy fights."

Warriors Wrap Up LaRusso

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Rudy LaRusso, deciding "I'd rather pursue a career than a lawsuit," signed a two-year contract Friday with the San Francisco Warriors of the National Basketball Assn.

The former Lakers star told a news conference that a suit he had initiated last winter against the NBA was being dropped.

"There were some unfortunate circumstances involved but they are all behind me and the league now," LaRusso said. "I'd rather pursue a career than a lawsuit."

LaRusso, 29 and standing 6-foot-9, added that he felt he had some productive years to give to the Warriors, who may or may not have Rick Barry in the lineup this season.

A stock broker as well as a cager, LaRusso had filed an anti-trust suit against the NBA last winter following his suspension by the league after he refused to log from the Lakers to Detroit in a three-way-trade.

In the trade, the Lakers had planned to send the Dartmouth graduate to Detroit. The Pistons in turn sent Ray Scott to Baltimore and the latter club shifted Mel Counts to Los Angeles.

But LaRusso balked at the prospect of leaving Los Angeles and announced he was quitting to devote full time to his stock broker's career in Beverly Hills. The Lakers, in the meantime, at first suspended LaRusso, then re-instated him. Then NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy again suspended LaRusso who countered with a lawsuit.

49ER SEASON GRID TICKETS NOW ON SALE

Tickets for the Cal State Long Beach football season are still on sale at the campus business office.

The 49ers, who finished for second in the CCAA last season, open their home season Saturday night, Sept. 16, against Cal Poly, Pomona at Veterans Stadium.

Season ticket holders will have excellent reserved seats at Veterans Stadium for games with Pomona, Valley State, Northern Arizona, Fresno State and Cal State L.A.

Clark Leads Qualifiers in Canada Prix

MOSPORT, Ont. (UPI) — Scotland's Jim Clark remained the top candidate for the pole position today as qualifying tests continued for Sunday's Grand Prix of Canada.

Clark, two-time world champion, established himself as a heavy favorite and the likely pole position driver by setting an official lap record in opening qualifications for Canada's first world championship auto race.

Driving a Ford-powered Lotus, Clark was timed in 1:22.5 around the half-mile track, an average speed of 106.5 mph. He beat the 1:23.1 record for Formula One cars set in competition by Californian Dan Gurney last year.

Sunday's Grand Prix, valued at more than $100,000, has attracted 18 top cars and drivers, including Australia's Jack Brabham and England's Graham Hill.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

The World University Games opens today in Tokyo with the strongest U.S. team in more than a decade scheduled to run away from the Soviet Union.

For over a month, the Soviets, Hungary and five other Communist nations have boycotted the games in sympathy with North Korea. North Korea withdrew because of a name-designation dispute with the Japanese. Experts believe the standstill will open the gates for U.S. domination.

TED WILLIAMS wants no part of the troubled Kansas City Athletics when asked Friday if he was in line for the managerial post recently vacated by Alvin Dark.

"... I'd be interested in being connected with a big league club if the circumstances were right. But I'm not interested in managing the A's or anyone else. I've had managerial offers before."

ROSEMARY George, 27, of Dover became the first non-American woman to complete crossings of the English Channel both ways. Miss George swam from Cap Gris Nez, France to Dover Friday in 17 hours, 15 minutes. She made the crossing from England to France six years ago in 21 hours, 35 minutes.

"The only other women to accomplish the feat are Greta Anderson of Long Beach and Florence Chadwick."

CALIFORNIANS dominated the North American single-handed sailing championship in the Great South Bay near Babylon, N.Y. Friday. Charles Barthrop of Piedmont finished second and fifth in the two races that were held Friday and finished with 160 points.

Second place went to Fred H. Miller of San Diego with 153 points.

CECIL DEES of Glendale successfully defended his World Seniors Golf Championship by defeating James Quinn of Kansas City 3 and 1 Friday.

Dees became the second player ever to win two World Seniors titles. Howard Creel of Colorado Springs was the first to do it in 1962 and 1963.

Extra Day of Fame for Unknown Pro

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — It wasn't the kind of day that turned Jim Colbert to golf.

A steady daylong rain at the Westchester Country Club flooded several greens Friday and forced postponement of the $250,000 Westchester Classic, the world's richest golf tourney.

The 72-hole tourney, with a $50,000 first prize, will now run through Monday with the second 18 today and the third round Sunday — providing the rain stops in time for the par-72, 6,618-yard course to be playable.

The rain left the spotlight on Colbert, one of the many little known young pros, who fired an opening-round 66 Thursday to tie the Kansas State football team and the first day the sun really came out, I thought, 'Gee, it'd be nice to play golf today.'

Colbert decided to do just that and even though he came to school on a football scholarship and also played basketball, he went on to make his name in collegiate golf — finishing second in the 1964 national collegiate tourney.

In his first nine months on the tour last year, Colbert made just $500, but this year he's 54th on the money list with $16,108.71 in official earnings and has already topped $22,000 in total earnings.

"If I didn't think I could go up, I wouldn't stay," he said. "I haven't set any goals but I want some of those titles." He has yet to win a tourney on the tour.

Colbert, who didn't even make the cut in last week's Greater Hartford Open, is expected to have a tough time remaining on top with Player and Rudolph.

Jack Nicklaus is just a stroke back at 67, tied with Bob Charles and 1966 rookie of the year John Schlee.

SubFlot 5-3 Champion of Navy Crown

Jim Cheeseman choked off Alameda Naval Air Station Friday and Submarine Flotilla took its fourth straight Pacific Regional title, 5-3, at Long Beach Naval Station.

The all-world right-hander was in relief of Roy Burleson with none out in the fourth with SubFlot's lead pared to 4-3 after a Flier homer by Tony Rivera.

Cheeseman retired the next 11 men in a row, hit a pinch batter, then got struck out No. 10 to take the win. This sent the three-time all-Navy champs back to Norfolk, Va., for a crack at No. 4.

SubFlot's sterling center-fielder Dave Lange homered in the fifth after Burleson had poked one out in the second.

The pro-Alameda crowd of some 800 had upset in mind until Cheeseman arrived.

This was Cheeseman's second win, having shot a 90 no-hit at Whidbey Island NAS, 9-0, Tuesday.

Golf on TV

Friday's rainout of the $250,000 Westchester Classic will give golf fans an extra 18 holes on their TV screens. The last three rounds will be telecast on Channel 9 at 2 p.m. today and Monday and at 1:30 Sunday.

Sims Fires 75 to Win Hammil Golf Tourney

Rick Sims fired a 75 on his home course Friday to set a record 220 for a three-day tournament and win the Alumni Boys division of the Lee Hammil Memorial Golf Tournament at Los Coyotes.

Jim Bradford, also of Los Coyotes, won the Boys 12-17 division with a 223, three strokes ahead of Greg Castelman and Gary Sanders.

Mesa Verdes Jan Gissell won the Girls 12-17 class with a 247.

COMING IN PARADE

THE TRAGIC PATTERN OF SEX SYMBOLS—Parade's Lloyd Shearer traces the mad, macabre suicide-and-accident death pattern established by a long list of Hollywood sex symbols dating back to the days of Clara Bow and Jean Harlow, and reports on a prophetic encounter with fading 36-year-old screen star Jayne Mansfield shortly before her fatal automobile accident.

WHY CRIME PAYS—THE REASON BEHIND THE SHOCKING TRUTH—In 76 percent of the crimes committed in America, the lawbreakers escape. One reason: police are still fighting crime with 19th century tools and tactics. Parade's Jack Anderson tears the lid off the shocking truth behind our outdated weapons and gives a preview of new space-age tools now available that could drastically cut crime statistics.

MEAT LOAF WITH CHEESE—Here's a big loaf—in size and goodness that rates four stars. Cheddar Meat Loaf blends cheese with beef and includes other choice ingredients such as rolled oats, onions, peppers, eggs and tomato sauce. As an added bonus, cheddar cheese meat loaf will cut easily without crumbling.

PERSONALITY PARADE—Is it true that Paul Newman is going to star in a film biography of Moshe Dayan, the Israeli general? Why has Moscow cancelled the exchange of Soviet and American circuses and brought the cultural exchange program to an almost complete halt? Walter Scott's popular Personality Parade has the answer to these and other provocative questions about persons and events in the news.
